2019/2020 Articling Student Positions

Our goal is to ensure that your articles provide you with the requisite experience and training to ensure your future success. During your articling term, you will become an integral part of our team and work on major projects in various areas of law. We collaborate with each student to ensure that students are able to get work in the areas that they are most interested in and facilitate a successful learning experience throughout articles.

Our structured articling program is made up of four rotations: Business; Litigation; Labour, Employment & Human Rights; and Junioring. While in your rotations, you will gain experience and build core skills within these areas.

As an Articling Student at Fasken, you can expect to:

- Receive comprehensive training and support towards your professional development and success;
- Work directly with clients;
- Gain experience in running small claims files;
- Draft court documents including pleadings, motion materials and factums;
- Attend motions, examinations for discovery and mediations; and
- Gain valuable skills and experiences to assist with reaching your full career potential.

Compensation:

Our students are remunerated at a level competitive with that of other large downtown Vancouver law firms. We pay for your articling enrolment fees, which includes fees for the Professional Legal Training Course (“PLTC”), as well as your salary while at PLTC. Medical and dental benefits as well as a fitness subsidy are also offered to our articling students.

Applications:

We adhere to the Vancouver Bar Association guidelines for student recruitment. Please refer to their website for important dates and deadlines. Interested candidates should submit an application (including cover letter, resume, undergraduate and law school transcripts) through the ViRecruit Portal. Applications should be addressed to:
