

LAW 302.3 COMMERCIAL RELATIONSHIPS2(3L)

(2022-2023 Bangsund)

Calendar Description: The course examines the law applicable to a range of relationships that arise in a variety of commercial transactions: sale of goods, leasing, the provision of commercial services that give rise to a lien on goods, and suretyship. While the course occasionally touches on consumer issues, its primary focus is commercial transactions and the various relationships that form thereunder.

Prerequisites/Co-requisites: NONE

Detailed Description: The course is divided into four parts.

Part 1 is devoted to the exploration of legal issues that arise under contracts for the sale of goods governed by The Sale of Goods Act. The following topics are covered: statutory scope, classification of goods, the seller's right and/or power to transfer title in goods, express and statutorily implied terms, delivery and payment obligations, acceptance and rejection of goods, and buyer's and seller's remedies. The Factors Act is also briefly canvassed during the first part of the course.

The importance of leasing in commercial markets warrants that attention be given to legal issues that are encountered when this alternative form of use arrangement is effectuated in place of a contract of sale. Part 2 of the course examines the following topics: function and characterization of leases, lessor's obligations, and lessor's remedies. Special attention is given to leases of new implements governed by The Agricultural Implements Act.

Providers of requested services and materials in relation to goods are conferred a statutory lien on those goods to secure payment of the payment obligation associated with the services agreement. Part 3 of the course examines The Commercial Liens Act, which operates in conjunction with The Personal Property Security Act, 1993 to govern the vast bulk of commercial liens on goods in the Province of Saskatchewan.

Suretyship law (i.e. the law of guarantee and indemnity) is a very important aspect of modern contracting. It facilitates transactions that might not otherwise occur by providing the assurance that, if the principal contractor fails to perform its obligations, the guarantor (surety) will do so in its stead. Part 4 of the course examines the supposed distinction between guarantee and indemnity, sets out the guarantor's numerous rights and defences, and explores contract formation issues that arise in the agricultural context under the governance of The Saskatchewan Farm Security Act.

Course Materials: The majority of the primary course materials are available in electronic format, and will be posted on the course website. Part 3 of the course will require the purchase of a book authored by the instructor and published by Publications Saskatchewan (2021, title pending).

Teaching and Assessment: The instructor will use various pedagogical techniques. Most topics are covered by lectures, then through examination of the law through its application to factual scenarios (i.e. problem sets). Student performance is assessed through a final open book examination. Five students may elect to write a research paper for 30% of the final grade in the course. Students electing to complete a minor research paper must state their intention within the first month of the term and have the nature and topic of the paper approved by the instructor. These students are required to write the entire final examination for the remainder of their final grade. Students not electing to write a minor research paper will write the final open book examination for 100% of their final grade.

LAW 303.3 SECURED TRANSACTIONS – PERSONAL PROPERTY1(3L)

(2022-2023 Milani - Estey Chair)

Calendar Description: The course canvasses secured financing practices in Canada involving collateral in the form of personal property, with a primary focus on commercial secured transactions. The course examines the policy and economic implications of secured financing law, and reviews the history, doctrinal basis and specific provisions of the primary sources of secured financing law in Canada – the provincial Personal Property Security Acts (PPSA) and the secured financing regime of the federal Bank Act. The study of case law will provide a contextual framework to interpret and apply this legislation to factual scenarios. The factual scenarios will be supplemented, in some cases, by sample documentation used in commercial law practice. These subjects are examined in the context of the two primary themes of the course: inter partes creation and enforcement of security agreements, and third party priority issues.

Prerequisites/Co-requisites: NONE

Detailed Description: Secured financing is a fundamental and pervasive aspect of modern economic activity, provincially, nationally and internationally. This course will provide students with a sound working knowledge of the domestic law of secured financing currently in effect in all Canadian common law jurisdictions, broken down as follows: Unit A: Introduction; Unit B: Foundation, involving a review of the history, philosophy, terminology, taxonomy and scope of the PPSA; Unit C: Creation & Attachment; Unit D: Perfection, involving an examination of the options and requirements for perfecting a security interest in personal property; Unit E: Priority, involving a detailed examination of the rules that determine entitlements of competing interests in collateral; Unit F: Enforcement, involving a review of the post-default enforcement rights of secured parties; Unit G: Bank Act Security; and Unit H: Conclusion.

Students will learn how to advise clients regarding their rights and obligations in secured financing transactions. They will critically evaluate the law of secured financing and understand developments in the case law and governing legislation. In addition to learning the fundamental mechanics of secured financing law, students are encouraged to critically examine its primary features in light of public policy goals, and explore approaches to the resolution of evolving and potential issues in this arena.

Course Materials: Bangsund on the Personal Property Security Act: The CCPSL Model (Thomson Reuters, 2021) is required. The course materials for Unit G will be made available in electronic format, and posted on the course website.

Teaching and Assessment: The instructor will use various pedagogical techniques. Most areas are covered by lectures, then through examination of the law through its application to factual scenarios (i.e. problem sets). Student performance is assessed through a final open book examination. Five students may elect to write a minor research paper for 30% of the final grade in the course. Students electing to complete a minor research paper must state their intention within the first month of the term and have the nature and topic of the paper approved by the instructor. These students are required to write the entire final examination for the remainder of their final grade. Students not electing to write a minor research paper will write the final open book examination for 100% of their final grade.

LAW 304.3 IMMIGRATION LAW1(3L)

(2022-2023 Amirzadeh)

Brief Description: This course examines the policies, laws, regulations, guidelines, procedures, and cases that illustrate how Canada defines membership in the Canadian community.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: Who do we want and who do we not want in Canada or as “Canadians”? Immigration policy and law has always been a subject of intense political debate in Canada. Some of the currently contentious issues include:

- Should family reunification considerations overcome economic interests when selecting immigrants? For instance, should Canada exclude your close family member from becoming a permanent resident because their disability may pose a risk to our publicly funded health or social services system?
- In what circumstances does Canada prevent people with past criminality issues from gaining immigration status? For instance, should a 7 year old assault conviction prevent someone from immigrating?
- Do individual human rights overcome the government’s national security interests? For instance, is Canada prepared to deport a refugee with links to terrorism if they face possible torture in the destination country?
- How important is fairness in the process of making immigration decisions? For instance, should there be a right of appeal from a negative immigration decision?
- Is predictability and certainty more important than flexibility in the application of immigration law? For instance, should visa officers have the power to exempt applicants from selection criteria if they think it is appropriate?

Answering these questions, as well as the many others in this area, requires resort to a variety of sources of law. For example, the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act (IRPA), Regulations and Citizenship and Immigration Canada (CIC) Policy manuals are central, and much of the course is concerned with reviewing the provisions of these enactments and publications. In some cases, IRPA can be challenged as conflicting with the Charter of Rights and Freedoms international public law (either customary or treaty law). In addition, because immigration practice often involves reviewing the decision-making of various immigration tribunals, the principles of administrative law are an important constraint on decision-makers. In addition, all of these sources of law are interpreted and applied by a wide variety of persons, including immigration (IRCC) and border security (Canadian Border Security Agency) officers at overseas and inland offices; the Refugee Protection Division (RPD) and the Immigration Appeal Division (IAD) of the Immigration and Refugee Board, as well as the federal Court, Federal Court of appeal and Supreme Court of Canada. Finally, the course aims to prepare students for practice as immigration lawyers by infusing all of the legal discussion with practical advice on preparing initial immigration applications, RPD refugee hearings, IAD appeals and Federal Court judicial review applications.

Materials: There will be a text book in addition to Immigration and Refugee protection Act, Immigration and Refugee protection Regulations and supplementary material to be distributed in advance of each class

Teaching and Assessment:

Option of :

- 1) 70% Final Examination
20% prerecorded video presentation as well as live question and answer during our class on Zoom and
10% class participation during the Zoom lecture

- 2) 90% Final Examination

LAW 308.3 GLOBAL INDIGENOUS RIGHTS AND RESOURCE DEVELOPMENT2(3L)

(2022-2023 Newman)

Description: This course is one of the courses that can be used for the upper-year requirement for a course on Indigenous legal issues. Please be aware that Professor Newman qualifies for a full-year sabbatical in 2023-2024 and, if he does take that, the course thus might not be available next year.

The subject matter in this class is an examination of the global law of Indigenous rights, with specific attention to implications of Indigenous rights in the context of resource development. Specific topics are adapted annually in response to emerging issues and scholarly work. In a typical year, possible topics include detailed examination and discussion of the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP) provisions on land rights, resource rights, and consultation/FPIC, other selected international law materials on Indigenous rights at a global level, comparative legal approaches to the doctrine of Aboriginal title in selected countries, the legal status and content of the 'duty to consult' doctrine in Canada as well as similar doctrines on consultation with Indigenous peoples in other states, emerging norms on 'free, prior, and informed consent' (FPIC) and their significance, and applications and implications of these various concepts in the context of selected resource sectors or resource-related infrastructure projects.

In winter 2023, the federal United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples Act (UNDRIPA) will be one significant focus within the course since it will have implications across many areas of legal practice in the coming years and decades. In addition, there will be some attention to some general issues related to intersections of Indigenous rights and Indigenous economic opportunities. Other central topics will likely include the pipelines jurisprudence, implications of Indigenous rights for project finance, and some issues related to applications of Indigenous rights norms to international operations of Canadian resource companies. The course always starts with a review of some core concepts and legal doctrines to ensure students have a sound starting point on section 35, and on international law there is an introduction to sources of international law so that students can understand key issues whether or not they have taken international law courses previously.

The course is meant to explore a series of key topics related to how Indigenous rights interact with natural resource development in Canada and internationally and to expose students to current scholarly research on related topics. In doing so, the course will seek to improve student knowledge on the law related to Indigenous rights and the law related to natural resource development, to engage with policy and strategic thinking about finding reconciliations between competing considerations in this area, and to offer greater perspective on how to integrate together different areas of law in analyzing complex legal problems.

The aim throughout is to encourage deep thinking in the context of issues with major significance to Indigenous peoples, to Canada as a resource superpower, to other states with significant resource endowments, and to a world that needs resources. With the topic matters at least sometimes poised at intersections between different worldviews, the course will engage with trying to find ways to integrate different areas of law (including constitutional and international law, as well as common law and Indigenous legal traditions). Students choosing this course should be prepared to engage carefully with readings and to think hard about challenging issues on which there can be a variety of different viewpoints.

The professor's writing is at the leading edge of scholarship on a number of these issues and is cited by scholars around the world as well as routinely by the Canadian courts. The professor has also worked on a variety of legal cases in this context and as a consultant to international investment entities considering related issues and draws upon some of that experience in helping students to think about law, policy, and rights together along with business and strategic considerations.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Course materials: Final decisions on readings will be made sometime during the fall semester in time to have books ordered to the bookstore. Primary legal materials and some scholarly materials will be downloadable and/or on reserve and/or readable through the electronic library resources. These will include parts of Dwight Newman (ed), Research Handbook on the International Law of Indigenous Rights (Edward Elgar 2022) and/or Ibironke Odumosu-Ayanu & Dwight Newman (eds), Indigenous-Industry Agreements, Natural Resources, and the Law (Routledge 2021), which are both useful but unfortunately not yet available in paperback. These will likely include two that are the same as recent past years: (1) Dwight Newman, Revisiting the Duty to Consult Aboriginal Peoples (Purich 2014); (2) Dennis McConaghy, Breakdown: The Pipeline Debate and the Threat to Canada's Future (Dundurn 2019). There might also be a third (short) text that is right on point with some of the topics, depending if it is available. [The overall amount of reading is not light, as this is a serious class, but I do follow norms for upper-year courses at the College.]

Teaching and Assessment: The default assessment is a 100% final exam as listed on the exam schedule (i.e. written during a scheduled exam slot). Students will also have an option to complete a minor research paper (for 40% of the mark), with an amended final exam then focused on just parts of the course, with such a paper to be framed to answer a question from a list to be provided early on in the course (which will be accompanied by consequences for coverage in the final exam).

LAW 310.3 INFORMATION AND PRIVACY LAW2(3L)

(2022-2023 von Tigerstrom)

Calendar Description: This course examines the law relating to collection, use, and disclosure of information in the public and private sectors in Canada.

Prerequisites/Co-requisites: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: This course is designed to allow students to gain a foundational understanding of the legislation and principles that govern collection, use, and disclosure of information in Canada. The core of the course consists of an examination of federal and selected provincial/territorial legislation dealing with information in both the public and private sectors (i.e.: access to information and privacy statutes that apply to government and public bodies; private sector information and privacy statutes that apply to commercial activities). It will also include an examination of various causes of action that could be pursued for violations of privacy or other disclosure or misuse of information. As time permits, a selection of other topics will also be considered, including anti-spam legislation, data security, and relevant international developments.

In addition to addressing a subject that is relevant to a broad range of areas of practice, this course provides an opportunity for students to gain experience in working with legislation, including statutory interpretation and understanding relationships among statutes and between statutes and the common law. Other important objectives include understanding and critical analysis of relevant theoretical concepts and policy questions, and further development of skills of legal analysis and communication.

Course Materials: Readings will be assigned from materials available online.

Teaching and Assessment: The course will be taught using a combination of lectures and class discussion. Assessment will include an open-book final examination and may include one or more assignments. A limited number of students will have the option of writing a minor research paper.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 5

LAW 311.3 CONSTRUCTION LAW2(2S-1R)

(2022-2023 Epp)

Calendar Description: This course is intended to provide students with a general introduction to construction law in Canada. Building on basic concepts learned in contract and tort law, students will gain an understanding as to how contracts for work are awarded; what construction contracts look like, including which clauses are typically the source of litigation; how performance of the work is secured by owners; what rights, obligations and remedies parties can access through The Builders' Lien Act, in contract or in tort; and how to use arbitration effectively to resolve construction disputes.

Prerequisites/Co-requisites: Contracts 202.5 (201.6) and Tort Law 211.5 (212.6)

Purpose and Orientation: Construction law is a significant practice area in Saskatchewan and beyond. The principles taught in this course will be relevant nationally. Upon completion of this course the student will be able to:

- Describe and apply legal principles, including the common law and statutory rules, which govern construction law.
- Describe how construction contracts are awarded, and the process by which performance of work is secured.
- Describe how to effectively use the arbitration process to resolve construction disputes.
- Apply construction law concepts, including those contained in The Builders' Lien Act, contract law and tort law, to appropriately resolve common construction law issues as well as develop a basic understanding of how to analyze and respond to the types of legal documents commonly filed in legal proceedings relating to construction disputes.

Course Materials: A link to required course readings, with the exception of the course's textbook, Saskatchewan Builders' Lien Manual (3rd Ed) by Colin Hirschfeld and Jared Epp, will be emailed to students a week in advance of each class. Course materials will consist of cases, tender documents, construction documents, pleadings and materials commonly filed in support of court actions, such as applications and affidavits.

Teaching and Assessment:

Take home final exam: 100%.

Students will be expected to prepare a legal memorandum, which will require an analysis and evaluation of court materials, which may include affidavits, contract documents and pleadings. To assist with preparation, some of these court materials will be provided to students in advance of the final exam. Students will also be expected to answer questions requiring them to apply course concepts to construction law fact patterns. The final exam will be open book.

LAW 314.3 HEALTH LAW
(2022-2023 von Tigerstrom)

1(3L)

Calendar Description: This course introduces students to the basic principles of medical law and their application to common issues in health care. It also explores the legal framework for the health professions and the health care system.

Prerequisites/Co-requisites: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: This course introduces students to basic principles of health law and to the complex legal and policy environment for the provision of health care in Canada. It will provide an overview of the health care system and its legal framework. The major part of the course will then consist of an exploration of health information, medical negligence, and consent to treatment. As time permits, we will also discuss other selected topics and current issues in health care. Throughout the course, students will be encouraged to consider the interaction of ethical and legal obligations from various sources and of different mechanisms for the accountability of health care providers.

Required Course Materials: Readings will be assigned from materials available online.

Teaching and Assessment: The course will be taught using a combination of lectures and class discussion. Assessment will include an open-book final examination and may include one or more assignments. A limited number of students will have the option of writing a minor research paper.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 5

LAW 321.3 TRANSFORMATION IN PRACTICE: RECONSTRUCTING
THE FUTURE LAWYER

1(3L)

(2022-2023 C. Zawada)

Calendar Description: This course combines in-person and online presentations and resources, group activities and hands-on training, including design thinking principles, for students to manage and exploit current and future challenges affecting the legal profession.

Prerequisite(s): NONE

Course Description and Objectives:

This course explores three major themes:

- a) Legal service providers must employ flexible and creative thinking when adopting unique solutions to meet future markets;
- b) Effective implementation of current and emerging technological tools is mandatory if lawyers and other providers are to remain relevant; and
- c) Design thinking principles are important, if not obligatory, when overcoming current and future impediments to access to justice.

Students (and lawyers) must understand the huge changes impacting the delivery of legal services, and enhance their personal skills toolkits to manage future requirements. These topics will be discussed and debated so practical solutions can be identified. Most importantly, students will learn to use and think about the actual technologies which are available, and consider how they can be applied or modified for maximum effectiveness.

Design thinking principles are a core feature of the course, so students can apply and use these techniques when evaluating choices. Through online presentations and resources, labs and workshop style sessions, students will create and assess personas representing some of the major stakeholders in the delivery of legal services. These personas help bring home the often-competing interests which the legal system tries to balance.

Design thinking usually involves personal group work, using in-person workshoping to ideate, experiment and test. Personal contact is not going away, but the shelter-in-place measures implemented during the Covid-19 pandemic show that mechanisms must exist which permit collaboration even when people cannot meet physically. Technology cannot be a complete substitute for in-person groups, but this course will explore how to substitute such work through tools like video conferencing. The class itself will iterate from these techniques, creating a continuous improvement environment, and a resource for other courses.

While some of the course covers what we learned from Covid-19, the major focus will be on problems already evident in the legal system. For example, what do customers need and expect, and how can one build a business or one's career around fulfilling those expectations? Have the players in the legal industry, ranging from trainers to providers, either ignored or failed to understand the real needs of their customers? The assumptions and consequences of this will be explored.

There will be emphasis on mandatory digital literacy and skills for legal service providers. Current technology will be discussed, along with emerging trends such as artificial intelligence and blockchain.

Beyond technology, other elements which affect legal service providers will be examined, together with potential solutions. This includes personal skills such as marketing, resilience and stress reduction, and cultural competence. The latter will include discussion of TRC issues.

Design thinking demands an attitude of experimentation. This will be an underlying, but key, part of the course: develop forward thinking graduates by stressing the need for continuous curiosity about the transformation of legal service delivery in the public interest. Since the future is always unknown, practitioners will need to be flexible so they can adapt to and grasp the inevitable changes.

This course is not only aimed at students who will pursue a career in private practice. Indeed, the very concept of private practice may be radically different in the future. The societal and professional changes which are occurring will affect legal services in every possible way and arena, and the skills necessary will be just as relevant to those who are in public service, government, or apply their legal training to other facets of life.

By the end of the course, students should be able to:

- employ a mindset of agility and adaptation to change;
- display comfort and competence in using current and future technological tools, such as video conferencing, collaboration software, online marketing strategies, and others;
- understand design thinking principles and how they can be applied to any manner of problems to create human-centric solutions;
- utilize and understand personal skills which students and legal service providers should know to maximize their career and personal potential, such as collaboration and teamwork, presentation skills, emotional intelligence and empathy, problem-solving skills, cultural competence, and resilience;
- describe the issues which have arisen and are likely to emerge in society and the legal profession that are contributing to breakdowns in the delivery of justice and legal assistance;
- gain an understanding of the issues which legal regulators are facing and anticipate some changes which they could employ, or which they may have to react to, when dealing with the changes identified.

Course Materials: Most course materials and readings are available through the class Canvas site. Students must obtain one text (Change by Design by Tim Brown) and one other text is optional (Sprint – How to Solve Big Problems and Test New Ideas by Jake Knapp). Edited versions or excerpts of cases and other materials are provided and students are only responsible for the portions contained in those versions.

Materials provided through Canvas or otherwise are intended to be used only by students enrolled in the course for the purpose of private study. Unless otherwise noted, CanLII is the original source of case excerpts in the edited materials.

Method of student evaluation:

Assessment of students will be based on:

- 1) (20%) Class participation, including:
 - a) attendance;
 - b) adequate preparation;
 - c) active involvement in classes and workshops; and
 - d) contribution to class discussions.
- 2) (80%) A final exam (open book), based on themes of the course.

LAW 322.3 CHILD PROTECTION LAW AND PRACTICE2(3L)

(2022-2023 Patrick)

Calendar Description: Child Protection Law and PracticePrerequisites/Co-requisites: NONE

Detailed Description: Child Protection Law and Practice focuses on child protection law in Canada and the legal, policy and practices, with the aim of helping students to develop a legal framework consistent with the theory, values and skills of practice in this area of law. The course will critically examine a range of contemporary legal, social policy and practice issues that impact the lives of children, caregivers, and their communities. The course examines the quasi-criminal and quasi-family law nature of child protection law in Canada. The main goal of the course is to provide a foundation for child protection law and practice within a social justice framework, by examining a range of issues pertinent to the practice of child protection law.

The course format will be interactive and success for all (including the instructor) will depend on the full participation of each person in critically examining issues and challenges pertinent to child protection law in Canada.

Learning Objectives: Students are expected to develop an understanding of both the foundational legal concepts of child protection law in Canada, as well as the practical realities and challenges that this practice area raises in Saskatchewan and its Indigenous communities. Students will understand the national significance of child protection and the challenges that this area of law faces following the TRC's Calls to Action, the federal and provincial legislative frameworks as well as practical realities. Students will become familiar with the national significance of addressing policy and social issues that include the over representation of Indigenous children, youth, families, and communities that get caught in "the system".

Course materials: All resources will be available on-line or through CanLII.

Teaching and Assessment: Final exam. Students approved to write a major research paper in the course will do so in lieu of a final exam.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: Unlimited

Weekly meetings will be scheduled for a time and in a location that works for the students and the Director.

This is an application-based class.

Total Hours: 72 (6 per week x 12 weeks)

Weekly Hours: Practicum 6 per week for 12 weeks

T1 or T2 (depending on student and Director preference)

Course Description: This internship will give students an opportunity to learn about the process of law reform and to develop their research and writing skills by working with the Commission and its Director on law reform projects in which the Commission is engaged.

The student will work under the supervision of the Director and provide written work and verbal reports on a regular basis. The student will have an orientation session and discuss assigned reading materials with the Director in the first week of the internship. Following this, the student will have weekly meetings with the Director. The student will work 6 hours/week for the Commission in 2 x 3-hour shifts and will also meet with the Director once per week for 30 minutes. The student will have deadlines for written work to be agreed upon with the Director. The student will also meet at least once per term with one or more of the Commissioners, and also attend a regular Commission meeting (if one is scheduled during the term).

Students will be selected for this course based on their applications. Students who wish to be considered are asked to submit their applications to Leah Howie, at director@lawreformcommission.sk.ca by Friday August 19, 2022.

Applications must include an unofficial transcript, resume, and cover letter, and must indicate in which term the student would prefer to complete their internship. Students will be notified in late August whether or not they have been selected. At this point, students who have been selected for the internship will have to drop a class in the term in which it has been offered, and contact louise.ferguson@usask.ca to register them in the internship.

Learning Objectives for this course:

- Understand the process and roles involved in reform of legislation
- Develop proficiency in legal research, including primary (legislation and case law) and secondary materials
- Develop skills of legal analysis
- Develop writing skills, including presenting the results of research and analysis in memos and other draft documents and drafting materials for the Commission's website
- Develop verbal communication skills, including the ability to summarize the results of research and articulate questions

Student Evaluation: The internship will be evaluated on a pass/fail basis. The student will be required to demonstrate competencies in legal research and writing and oral and written communication. The student will also be required to complete a self-reflection exercise at the end of the term.

LAW 324.3 ADVANCED NEGOTIATION AND DISPUTE RESOLUTION IN FAMILY LAW

(2022-2023 – TERM 2 Charmaine Panko)

(This is an application-based course)

Calendar Description: This is an advanced DR course which builds on the basic skills introduced in Negotiation 430, and focuses on the area of family conflict. The course will allow students to study emerging DR models in family law, and will focus on advanced skill development. Topics will include inter-disciplinary approaches and adaptive processes that allow lawyers to better understand and address the dynamics of family conflict.

Applications: Students will apply to participate in this course. Applications will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis, and students will be accepted into the course as long as they have completed the prerequisites. To apply, please email the instructor at cpanko@commonsenselawyer.com.

Prerequisite: At a minimum, students will have taken Negotiation 430 AND one family law course such as Family Law I 372. For a complete understanding of family law issues, before taking this course, students will have also taken Family Law II 471 or would be registered in 471 at the same time.

Purpose and Orientation: The landscape of practicing family law is changing quickly, with a growing emphasis on dispute resolution processes outside of court. The Negotiation course prepares students for problem-solving processes with general skills, but many unique challenges (and opportunities) arise when working with families in conflict. This course will delve into those challenges (taking issues like mental health, family violence and cultural backdrop into account). It will also explore DR processes, some long-standing and others emerging, such as: mediation, interdisciplinary collaborative process, arbitration and parent coordinator roles, pre-trial conferences, self-representation and coaching.

Texts: Materials will be distributed.

Teaching and Assessment: Course work includes in-class participation exercises and out-of-class experiences as well as written reflective assignments and in-class debriefings of exercises and out-of-class experiences. The emphasis is on formative assessment (development of skills over time) and collaborative learning. This course does not have an exam but each student is required to present a final project on Re-imagining Family Law. The course is not eligible for either the major or minor research paper credit. Class size is limited to 20.

LAW 326.3 TRUSTS1(3L)

(2022-2023 - TERM 1 Flannigan)

Calendar Description: The course covers the creation, administration, variation and breach of express trusts. Resulting and constructive trusts are also examined.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Course Objective: The purpose of the course is to describe the structure of the trust and investigate the functions that modern trusts perform. Trusts are an indispensable tool for many formal arrangements between parties. Students will be introduced to this general utility and, at the same time, learn the limitations of the use of the trust. Students should be able to: define terminology commonly used in trusts, state and apply the rules which govern validity of trusts, as well as contrast the trust with other legal concepts. Furthermore, they should be able to solve problems by applying the law related to express trusts, remedial trusts, purpose trusts, trust remedies, the administration of trusts and trust theory.

Course Materials: There is no casebook to purchase. The instructor will provide a readings list.

Teaching and Assessment: Instruction is by lecture and discussion. Assessment is based on an open-book final exam, and a participation mark.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 5

*Laptops, phones or other devices are not permitted in this class.

Calendar Description: A survey of the role of administrative agencies within the Anglo-Canadian legal system focusing primarily on consideration of the extent to which agency and executive action is subject to judicial review and control.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: This course will provide an introduction to the basic principles of administrative law which govern the activities of administrative bodies and the relationship between the legislative, executive and judicial branches of government. The areas discussed will include procedural fairness, bias and independence, discretion, the application of the Charter to administrative decision making, judicial review, and other remedies available with respect to administrative decisions. Students will have an opportunity to consider and discuss both practical and theoretical issues regarding the role of administrative decision makers. The course will serve as a foundation for further study and practice in a wide range of areas, including health, environment, immigration, labour, professional regulation, education, and financial regulation.

Course Materials: TBA.

Teaching and Assessment: The course will be taught by a combination of lectures and class discussion. Assessment will include components for attendance, class participation, assignments, and possibly a short-answer quiz. There will not be a final exam. A limited number of students also have the option of writing a minor research paper.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 5

This section of Administrative Law I will depart from the usual course description in the following ways:

- a) It will be limited to 20 students;
- b) Preference will be given to Indigenous students and to students whose first language was not English, and students who have regularly attended Academic Success;
- c) Assessment will largely be by a series of assignments instead of a final exam;
- d) To enrol in the class, students will need to complete an application form (which will be made available on the “Current Students” webpage on the College of Law website), and email it to: Louise Ferguson, louise.ferguson@usask.ca.

LAW 340.3 ADMINISTRATIVE LAW1&2(3L)

(2022–2023 - Term 1 (s.1) Heavin; Term 2 (s.2) Hoehn)

Calendar Description: A survey of the role of administrative agencies within the Anglo-Canadian legal system focusing primarily on consideration of the extent to which agency and executive action is subject to judicial review and control.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: This course will provide an introduction to the basic principles of administrative law which govern the activities of administrative bodies and the relationship between the legislative, executive and judicial branches of government. The areas discussed will include procedural fairness, bias and independence, discretion, the application of the Charter to administrative decision making, judicial review, and other remedies available with respect to administrative decisions. Students will have an opportunity to consider and discuss both practical and theoretical issues regarding the role of administrative decision makers. The course will serve as a foundation for further study and practice in a wide range of areas, including health, environment, immigration, labour, professional regulation, education, and financial regulation.

Term 1 – Heavin Course Materials: TBA. Term 2 – Hoehn Course Materials: TBA.

Teaching and Assessment: The course will be taught by a combination of lectures and class discussion. Assessment may include components for class participation and will include one or more open book examinations or assignments. A limited number of students also have the option of writing a minor research paper.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 5

LAW 341.3 FIRST NATIONS' ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT2(2S-1R)

(2022-2023 Busch)

Calendar Description: The seminar examines the evolution of First Nations economic development. There will be a brief overview of historical economic activities by First Nations, a review of government legislation and policy that impacted First Nations economies and a review of legal developments including First Nations-led legislative initiatives that have created the environment for renewed economic development activities by First Nations.

Prerequisites/Co-requisites: None

Purpose and Orientation: This seminar is designed to equip students with the knowledge of the evolution of First Nations economic development. To understand the successes, challenges and opportunities of current economic development by First Nations requires an overview of the historical economic development activities carried out by First Nations. It also requires an examination of how government policy and legislation adversely affected First Nations abilities to participate in the economy both before and after Treaty making. Lastly, the successes and opportunities for current and future economic development can be attributed to a resurgence in cultural and traditional activities, recent case law and First Nations-led legislative developments along with appropriate business structures. The seminar will provide the student with a well-rounded comprehension of economic development issues and the legislative and legal regime in which First Nations operate.

Course Materials: Materials will be available online.

Teaching and Assessment: The primary teaching method is by lecture along with discussions and questions. Assessment will be 75% written paper, 15% for class participation and 10% for short presentations in class.

LAW 342.3 APPELLATE ADVOCACY1(3S)

(2022-2023 L. Wihak)

Calendar Description: This is a theory and practice course, combining the study of legal principles unique to appellate litigation and the work of appellate courts, with practical written exercises, and a mock appeal in the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal. The objective of this class, which will combine both lecture and class discussion, is to increase a student's understanding of the appellate process in both civil and criminal matters, and to provide practical exposure to the practice of litigation.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: None. Successful completion of civil procedure or criminal procedure and administrative law would be an asset, but is not required.

Detailed Description: The goal of this class is to teach students how to serve effectively as counsel for a party on an appeal. The first part of the course will focus on appellate theory, and will concentrate on the structure of and legal constraints on Canadian appellate courts. It will be comprised of lectures, including guest lectures from seasoned appellate counsel and various Saskatchewan Court of Appeal judges, and class discussions in seminar form. While this course will be delivered fully in person, classes featuring guest speakers may need to take place via Zoom in order to accommodate our guests' schedules.

The objective of this class is to provide students with an overview of the appellate framework and process, including the right to appeal, jurisdiction of appellate courts, scope of review, and relevant statutory provisions and rules of court. The unique role of the Supreme Court of Canada in the Canadian court system will also be discussed, as will more recent developments in appellate practice such as cameras in the courtroom, electronic filing, and hearings via videoconference, all of which have taken on greater importance in the post-COVID world.

The second part of the course will be skills oriented. Since written advocacy, and especially the ability to write persuasively and effectively, is central to appellate litigation practice, the course will emphasize written advocacy slightly more than oral advocacy. Although focusing on the appellate setting, the skills aspect of this class will prepare students for arguing motions and writing legal briefs for any level of court or administrative tribunal, and will introduce the basic advocacy skills essential for making effective oral presentations in those settings.

Course Requirements: The subject matter covered by this course is considerably complex, and should be considered as advanced. The nature and extent of the readings reflect that notion. By way of evaluation, students will be required to undertake tasks central to the appellate process, such as drafting notices of appeal; preparing a written factum in an appeal; oral argument; and preparing a short legal memorandum on an issue relevant to practice in appellate courts. Given the small class format, and the prevalence of guest lectures, there is also a participation component to the course evaluation.

(Please note this course is not suitable for fulfilling the College of Law's requirement for a major or minor research paper.)

LAW 346.3 INTERNAL ENVIRONMENTAL LAW MOOT2(3S)

(2022-2023 L. Howie)

The internal environmental moot course will be offered biennially, in years when the Willms & Shier national environmental moot competition is not running. This course will provide students with a similar learning experience to that offered to students selected to the College's Willms & Shier Environmental moot team and is taught by the coach of the moot team. Because the moot problem will always be different, students who take this course can still be a member of the College's environmental moot team in years when the Willms & Shier national environmental moot competition is running as students will learn distinct and non-overlapping substantive elements of environmental law.

The course will provide students with instruction in areas of environmental law relevant to the moot case, advanced legal research and writing, and appellate advocacy. The Instructor and guest lecturers will deliver lectures for the first half of the term, on topics relevant to the moot problem. The remaining half of the term will be spent with the student teams meeting with the Instructor to review their memos and factum, presenting their research findings to the group, and participating in at least one practice moot session.

The course will end with the students participating in the Saskatchewan Association for Environmental Law (SKAEL) environmental moot, which will be organized and run by SKAEL biennially in the years when the Willms & Shier Environmental Moot is not running.

Learning objectives and modes of assessment:

Students will develop their legal research and writing and advocacy skills while also learning about appellate advocacy and the areas of environmental law relevant to the moot problem. The course will be experiential: the students (acting as junior counsel) will be reporting to the Instructor (acting as senior instructing counsel). The students will have input on the issues to be researched and dealt with in their research memos.

The students will be required to brief the Instructor and the class on their research memos. Following these briefings, the Instructor will provide feedback on both the form and substance of the memos and suggest areas for possible future research. The students will also receive feedback on their draft factums that they will be expected to incorporate. The course will also encourage students to engage in reflective practice by completing a number of reflective exercises throughout and at the end of the course.

Students will be assessed on the following:

Research Memos (individual mark)	30%
Factum (group mark)	25%
Moot (individual mark)	25%
Moot Preparation Assignment (individual mark)	10%
Class Participation (individual mark)	10%

LAW 347.3 DONALD G. H. BOWMAN NATIONAL TAX MOOT
(2022-2023 Sittler)

1/2Nov.-Feb.

In 2021-22, many moots remained online. We are anticipating that most will go back to in-person, but should know more by late summer. If you are interested in the upper year moots, keep an eye out for an announcement in late August or right at the start of term. You will have a chance to apply for any moots that interest you. We typically run interviews or try-outs on a weekend, before mid-September

Description: Up to five students will be selected annually to participate in the Donald G. H. Bowman National Tax Moot, which has been held in Toronto in the past and was held virtually in 2021 and 2022. The moot may continue to proceed virtually or partly virtually. The moot involves research and advocacy, both oral and written, and allows students from Canadian law schools to debate current legal issues in taxation law with senior tax practitioners and with justices of the Tax Court and Federal Court of Appeal. The moot is recommended to those with an interest in public speaking, advocacy, exacting research and taxation issues.

Calendar Description: This course is designed for students who wish to participate in the Donald G.H. Bowman National Tax Moot. The moot involves research and advocacy, both oral and written, and allows students from Canadian law schools to debate current legal issues in taxation law with senior practitioners and with justices of the Tax Court and Federal Court of Appeal. The seminar is recommended to those with an interest in public speaking, advocacy, exacting research and taxation issues. A team of up to five students (four oralists and up to one additional participant) will be selected to represent the College at the moot competition.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Emphasis: This course is designed to prepare students for participation in the Donald G.H. Bowman National Tax Moot. The content of the course depends on the issues raised by the moot problem. The problem is usually available in the early fall, and the competition takes place in late February or early March. Some work over December break may be required. Work and attendance at meetings and practices over the February break is essential.

Students who are invited may indicate their interest and compete for a place on the team. No more than five students may participate. Students are selected through an interview process and selection may be made on the basis of academic record, mooting experience or other relevant experience. Interested students will be invited to submit application materials including an updated CV and cover letter and may be interviewed as a part of the selection process.

Course Materials: The materials covered depend on the issues raised by the moot problem. Students identify the issues, then divide them among the group in two teams (two appellant representatives, two respondent representatives). Research materials identified by the coach and/or the moot problem make up the bulk of the course materials.

Teaching: In accordance with the rules of the competition, faculty assistance is limited to a general discussion of the issues, suggestions as to research sources, and suggestions on ways students can improve their moot style. In addition to seminar discussions of the issues and research sources, students will participate in several meetings and practice moots in the months of January and February. Students will prepare both an appellant and respondent factum, the final drafts of which have, in the past, been submitted to the competition organizers in early February.

Teaching and Assessment: Each student's mark will be arrived at using a combination 25% attendance, 25% quality and timeliness of written work (which will necessitate evaluation of the written work as a group effort), 25% quality of oral work, and 25% group participation. Pursuant to the moot rules, the additional participant may not be required to present oral argument at the moot competition but the additional participant will have the opportunity to present oral argument in a practice setting. In the case of the additional participant, their individual mark will be based on their research contributions to the moot team as well as their participation in practice moots (and the moot competition itself if required). The course will not satisfy the major research paper requirement nor will it meet the seminar program requirement.

LAW 351.3 EVIDENCE I2(3L)

(2022-2023 Patrick)

Calendar Description: This course examines the common law foundations of the law of evidence in Canada – principally rules and standards of admissibility. The topics examined include judicial notice, presumptions and burdens/standards of proof, relevance and materiality, receivability, character evidence, opinion evidence, privilege, and hearsay.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: The purpose of the course is to introduce students to fundamental concepts, principles, rules and standards in the law of evidence. Evidentiary issues arise in all areas of legal practice. Even where there is no resort to litigation, the rules of evidence often determine the strength of the client's legal case and so must be considered. This course focuses on the rules of evidence in criminal proceedings, but we will sometimes also look at evidentiary issues arising in civil and constitutional litigation, as well as administrative hearings.

The law of evidence is in a state of perennial flux. Over the past twenty years, the Supreme Court has completely re-fashioned the law pertaining to hearsay evidence, expert opinion evidence, similar fact evidence, judicial notice, the right to silence, and various other fundamental concepts. The object of this course is not simply to describe the law of evidence, but to examine and critically assess the directions in which it moves. To that end, we will consider the extent to which the various rules of evidence can be justified on moral and policy grounds, drawing upon the historical development of the law, and sometimes comparing the Canadian approach to that used in other countries.

The law of evidence is primarily concerned with admissibility and receivability. Evidence is presumptively admissible if it is relevant to a material issue. We will consider the meaning of materiality and relevance early in the course. These concepts, though they apply in every case to every kind of evidence, apply differently depending on the type of evidence adduced; i.e., depending on whether the evidence in question is direct, circumstantial, or real. These classifications will also be explained. Even if evidence is relevant to a material issue, it will be inadmissible if it is subject to an exclusionary rule (e.g., the hearsay rule or the confessions rule). A number of these rules (though, due to time constraints, not all) will be examined later in the course. Finally, evidence may be admissible but not receivable – the trial judge may use her discretion to exclude admissible evidence if she concludes that its prejudicial effect exceeds its probative value. We will consider the circumstances in which trial judges have (and have not) exercised their discretion in this way.

Course Materials:

- Ron Delisle, Don Stuart & David Tanovich, Evidence: Principles and Problems, 12th ed. (Carswell, 2018)

Teaching and Assessment: The course will be taught primarily in a lecture format, though students will be expected to participate in class by asking and responding to questions about the materials, and by engaging each other in debate.

All students will write one open-book final examination. Assessment may include a midterm examination or assignment. A limited number of students also have the option of writing a minor paper.

Minor Papers Allowed: 5 or with permission of the instructor

LAW 361.3 BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS I
(2022-2023 Flannigan)

1(3L)

Calendar Description: Examination of the basic features of business corporations. Topics include corporate personality, the process of incorporation, the powers and duties of directors and officers, shareholder rights and remedies.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose: In Saskatchewan there are three different general incorporation statutes, the Business Corporations Act, the Cooperative Corporations Act and the Non-Profit Corporations Act. The focus in this course is on the Business Corporations Act. The purpose of the course is to acquaint students with the basic elements of corporate structure. No commerce or business background is required in order to do well in this course.

Course Materials: There is no casebook to purchase. The instructor will provide a readings list.

Teaching and Assessment: Instruction is by lecture and discussion. Assessment is based on an open-book final exam, and a participation mark.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 5

*Laptops, phones or other devices are not permitted in this class.

LAW 363.3 AGRICULTURAL LAW I2(3L)

(2022-2023 Farnese)

Calendar Description: Agriculture is a highly regulated industry in most jurisdictions; Canada and Saskatchewan are no exception. Historically, governments have intervened in agriculture under the pretext of ensuring stability in both the agriculture and consumer communities. It is because of this intervention, Agricultural Law is often considered the law of exceptions. The course will review specific legislation designed to regulate agriculture, such as the Saskatchewan Farm Security Act, as well as agricultural exceptions in general legislation. Case law and other legal analysis will be included when necessary.

Prerequisites/Co-requisites: Successful completion of first year law

Purpose and Orientation: The course is designed to provide a practical overview of the current legal issues in agriculture. Based on student interest and experiences, topics that may be discussed include labour law, the administration of government support programs, environmental regulation of agriculture, contracting in agriculture, the marketing of agricultural products, food safety, debt in agriculture, animal health and welfare, traceability. In addition, all students will have the opportunity to further develop their legal writing skills.

Course Materials: 1. Case materials by Farnese.

Teaching and Evaluation: The instructor will employ a number of techniques to assist students in developing a historical and contextual understanding of the material. If a major or minor research paper is not completed, students will complete up to 2 case study assignments throughout the duration of the course. Students not writing a major research paper will complete a final exam worth 50% of their final grade.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 90

LAW 372.3 FAMILY LAW I
(2022-2023 – TERM 1 Wieggers)

1(3L)

Calendar Description: Introduction to trends in families and family law, the constitutional and statutory framework for the regulation of families and the role of process issues in family law practice. The course also provides a detailed examination of support obligations and property rights as between spouses, both married and common law.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: This course provides an introduction to the substantive themes and trends in families and family law, the constitutional and statutory framework for the regulation of families and the role of process issues in family law practice.

In addition to providing an introduction to substantive and process issues in family law, the course offers a detailed examination of the legal meaning and implications of spousal status.

Examination of the legal definition of spouse will include a review of the extension of marital status to gay and lesbian couples as well as the circumstances in which spousal status is attributed to unmarried cohabitants.

The impact of domestic violence on the safety and personal security of spouses and on the fair and equitable resolution of disputes will be given special attention.

A substantial portion of the course will deal with spousal rights to property division under The Family Property Act including division of the family home, household goods and other types of family property. Finally, spousal rights to support or maintenance will be examined under the federal Divorce Act and the provincial Family Maintenance Act and with reference to the Spousal Support Guidelines.

Course Materials: A case book will be available on Canvas. No other materials are necessary for the course, although reference may be made to certain commentaries and articles.

Assessment: Possibilities for assessment include minor or major research papers and an exam.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 5

LAW 372.3 FAMILY LAW I
(2022-2023 Singer s.2)

2(3L)

Calendar Description: Introduction to trends in families and family law, the constitutional and statutory framework for the regulation of families and the role of process issues in family law practice. The course also provides a detailed examination of support/maintenance and property rights as between spouses, both married and common law.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: This course provides an introduction to the substantive themes and trends in families and family law, the constitutional and statutory framework for the regulation of families and the role of process issues in family law practice.

In addition to providing an introduction to substantive and process issues, the course offers a detailed examination of the legal meaning and implications of spousal status.

Examination of the legal definition of spouse will include a review of the extension of marital status to LGBTQ+ couples as well as to the circumstances in which spousal status is attributed to unmarried cohabitants of any sexual orientation.

A substantial portion of the course will deal with spousal rights to property division under The Family Property Act including division of the family home, household goods and other types of family property. Finally, spousal rights to financial support or maintenance will be examined both under the federal Divorce Act and the provincial legislation, The Family Maintenance Act, 1997. The impact of private agreements on rights to support and division of property will also be reviewed.

Course Materials: A case book is available on PAWS. No other materials are necessary for the course, although reference may be made to certain commentaries and articles.

Assessment: Students will be assessed by way of a 100% open book final.

LAW 384.3 CIVIL PROCEDURE1(3L)

(2022-2023 Kennedy)

Calendar Description: A chronological study of the procedural steps, rules and related substantive law in a civil action from the moment of the decision to sue to the trial of the matter. The context of the adversarial process in an action is examined by reference to the policies underlying civil procedure, the role and authority of the lawyer, the organization and jurisdiction of the courts and limitations of actions. The civil action is examined through a focus on principles of jurisdiction and venue, type and manner of commencement of proceedings, pleadings, multiple claims and parties, and questioning. The course will involve the drafting of documents. The ethical conduct of a civil action is taught at each stage of the class.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: The course is intended to provide a basic understanding of the process, principles, rules and discretion in adjudication in formal legal proceedings (specifically, a general procedure civil action in superior court-in Saskatchewan, The Court of Queen's Bench). The initial focus is on the decision-making that takes place in the law office with respect to suing. Basic issues with respect to the role of the lawyer, choice of courts, limitation periods and costs of litigation are developed as aspects of the decisions to sue and settle litigation. The main focus in the examination of procedures is to develop an understanding of the content and scope of procedures by reference to definition, history and purpose of the rules. Drafting of documents and pleadings in an action are used to compliment case and rule analysis as part of understanding the process of litigation.

Course and Materials: tba

Teaching and Assessment: The method of teaching is a combination of lecture, modified Socratic discussion and group activities. A major element of the course will require the students to work as "counsel" in an hypothetical action. This simulation will require the students to draft pleadings, prepare a Pre-Trial Conference Brief, and participate in a Pre-Trial Conference. The course is marked on a Pass/Fail basis. Students must successfully complete all aspects of the course to achieve a pass.

Minor Reserch Papers Allowed: 0

LAW 384.3 CIVIL PROCEDURE2(3L)

LAW 398.3 LAW FOUNDATION SEMINAR1(2S-1R)

(2022-2023 Rochette – Law Foundation Chair 2022)

Calendar Description: (This course is) offered occasionally by visiting faculty and in other special circumstances to cover, in depth, topics that are not thoroughly covered in regularly offered courses.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Detailed Description: Successful completion of this course will fulfil the College of Law's seminar requirement.

The main objective of this course is for you to explore and start defining your identity as a legal professional. We will consider what it means to be a legal professional in a self-regulated profession today but also looking to the future of the profession. Some of the themes explored include the notions of competence, professional identity and professionalism, as well as the roles and responsibilities of legal professionals, models of lawyering and some of the competencies required of legal professionals. We will discuss how to become an effective, ethical, and fulfilled legal professional.

This course is entirely based on reflective practice, which you will learn about and practice on your own (self-reflection), in small groups and as a class (collective reflection). This course will create an opportunity for you, as a future legal professional, to become self-aware about your values, to self-assess your strengths and areas of improvement, and to reflect on your own professional identity.

Course Materials: Primary materials for the course are available in electronic format and will be posted on the course website or elsewhere. Students will not be required to purchase any textbooks. Some texts may be placed on reserve at the library.

Evaluation: The evaluation is as follows:

- 15 % Class attendance and participation
- 15% Reflective assignments
- 70 % Major Research Paper

Minor Research Papers Allowed: NONE

CLIENTS & LAWYERS: TRAUMA & RESILIENCE

Calendar Description: This course engages law students in better understanding trauma-informed approaches to legal service provision, decision-making, and institution building. Content Forecast: this course will include discussions of harm to humans, including sexual harms, in the context of legal service provision. Care will be taken when discussing harm, and wellness practices will be incorporated throughout the course.

Pre-requisites/ Anti-requisites: NONE. Students who have had experience working with clients will benefit from reflecting on these experiences.

Detailed Description: Lawyers, especially those working in criminal, family, immigration and refugee, and related areas work with clients who have experienced harm. Increasingly, lawyers and decision-makers in these contexts are incorporating trauma-informed perspectives. Indeed, trauma-informed approaches on both individual and systemic levels are essential to ethical and responsive lawyering. Although the law often requires deficit-based understandings of human experience, trauma survival also requires resilience; hence, this course also draws from research on sources of client and community resilience.

The class will engage with the following questions, among others: how does secondary trauma impact lawyers?; how does trauma, including complex trauma, manifest in the client-lawyer relationship?; how does ignoring trauma impact clients in interviewing, dispute resolution, and litigation?; how does trauma-informed practice manifest in judicial decision-making?; how can legal systems perpetuate harm, and what processes and practices can support trauma-informed approaches?; how can legal workplaces support trauma-informed and resilient approaches to practice?; how can lawyers better incorporate intersectional understandings of trauma (including race- and gender-based harms); and, how can settler understanding of trauma perpetuate its own harm for Indigenous lawyers and clients?.

Course Materials: All materials will be posted online.

Teaching and Assessment:

The teaching methodology will include short lectures with discussion-based and interactive activities. Guests will also be invited to support students' learning.

Students will be assessed through the following methods:

Major Research Paper: Students will be asked to write a major research paper proposing one reform to either individual or institution-level practices. This proposal must be supported by research: 60%

Presentation: Students present on their policy paper: 20%

Discussion leader: Students will be expected to briefly highlight their learning from the week's readings, videos, etc. and pose three discussion questions for the class. Discussion leaders will rotate throughout the term: 20%

Minor Research Papers Allowed: NONE

LAW 401.3 SECURITIES REGULATION1(3L)

(2022-2023 Wright)

Calendar Description: An introduction to the principles of securities regulation in Canada. The course will provide an overview of the regulatory system, including prospectus requirements (and exceptions thereto), continuous disclosure, exempt market financing, and certain forms of corporate transactions involving securities (e.g., plans of arrangement, take-over bids, etc.). Special emphasis will be given to the regulatory aspects of advising a public company, including corporate finance, disclosure and governance matters, and exempt market securities offerings.

Prerequisite: Business Organizations I 361.3 is a requirement to take this class. Exceptions are made but only in very exceptional circumstances.

Purpose and Orientation: The purpose and orientation of this course is to introduce the principles of securities regulation for those who wish to practice in the area of corporate or securities law or who may ultimately advise publicly traded companies, in either an in-house or external counsel role. For students who will likely maintain a more general practice, it is designed to enable the practitioner to recognize and identify securities law issues as they may arise and to learn how exempt market financings work.

Course and Materials: Required materials include:

Canadian Securities Regulation, 5th Edition, David Johnston, Kathleen Doyle Rockwell, Cristie Ford, LexisNexis Canada, 2014 (buy the Student Edition)

Primary sources: Saskatchewan Securities Act, 1988 and various National Instruments and Policies available online.

Teaching and Assessment: The course will be principally taught by lecture, with case study and fact situations designed to elicit discussion and provide illustrations of the problems and issues facing market participants pertaining to the materials covered. Assessment will be based on attendance and participation (10% of the grade) and final exam (90% of the grade).

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 0

LAW 404.3 JUDGMENT ENFORCEMENT LAW1(3L)

(2022-2023 Bangsund)

Calendar Description: This course addresses the Province of Saskatchewan's unique system for the enforcement of money judgments. It entails a detailed examination of The Enforcement of Money Judgments Act, which provides a code of law addressing money judgments. This is supplemented by an examination of the circumstances in which non-Saskatchewan and non-Canadian judgments can be enforced against assets in Saskatchewan. Another aspect of judgment enforcement is the law dealing with fraudulent conveyances and preferences. A significant portion of the course is devoted to this complex area of the law, which may soon be subject to legislative reform in Saskatchewan.

Prerequisite: NONE

Detailed Description, Purpose and Orientation: This course is designed primarily to equip students with the knowledge required to address the very practical questions of whether and how a money judgment can be enforced. Since judgments for the payment of money are issued in connection with legal proceedings involving virtually any area of law, this subject is relevant to almost every field of legal practice.

A court's issuance of a judgment does not enable a successful claimant to reach the financial resources or property of the judgment debtor for purposes of satisfying the successful plaintiff's claim. The enforcement of a judgment for the payment of money entails resorting to the specialized systems of law that constitutes the subject of this course. The various methods of judgment enforcement are examined in this course with a focus on a range of statutory measures contained in The Enforcement of Money Judgments Act.

A feature of modern judgment enforcement law is recognition of the enforceability in Saskatchewan of judgments issued by courts in other provinces or countries, and the enforceability of Saskatchewan judgments in other jurisdictions. The course explores the statutory systems that have been implemented in Saskatchewan to deal with foreign judgment enforcement.

Another important aspect of the course is an examination of the law dealing with "fraudulent" conveyances and preferences. While legislation dealing with these types of transactions is based on concepts first established in the Statute of Fraudulent Conveyances, 1571, it remains a central feature of modern judgment enforcement law. The various features of this important area of the law are examined. Time permitting, recent statutory reform proposals in the Province of Saskatchewan (namely, the 2021 proposals of the Law Reform Commission of Saskatchewan for a Reviewable Transactions Act) will be reviewed.

In addition to acquainting students with the functional and conceptual features of judgment enforcement law, the course provides a context within which students can assess some of the commercial and social issues underlying it.

Course and Materials: The mandatory text is Ronald CC Cuming & Donald H Layh, The Saskatchewan Enforcement of Money Judgments Act: Commentary & Analysis (Regina: Saskatchewan Queen's Printer, 2012). Select case law, available both through CanLii (for free) and online library resources and CanLii, will be assigned periodically throughout the semester.

Teaching and Assessment: Various pedagogical techniques are used in this course. Most topics are covered by lectures, then through examination of the law through its application to factual scenarios (i.e. problem sets). Student performance is assessed through an open book final examination for 100% of the course grade. Five students may elect to write a research paper for 30% of their course grade. Students electing to complete a minor research paper must state their intention within the first month of the semester and have the nature and topic of the paper approved by the instructor. These students are required to write the entire final examination for the remainder of their course grade. Students not electing to write a minor research paper will write the open book final examination for 100% of their course grade.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 5

LAW 407.3 BANKRUPTCY, INSOLVENCY & RECEIVERSHIP1(3L)

(2022-2023 Bangsund)

Calendar Description: This course has been designed to facilitate student examination of the law of bankruptcy, insolvency and equitable receivership, each of which is governed by statutory codes and extensive judge-made law.

Prerequisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: Bankruptcy and insolvency law have become central features of the Canadian economy. The dramatic increase in the use of debt by business enterprises and consumers over the last 25 years has resulted in increasing need to invoke statutory schemes designed to address the consequences of default by debtors.

The specific issues that will be examined in the context of bankruptcy law will include: the invocation of the bankruptcy system, the property of a bankrupt that he or she can keep and the property that is taken by a trustee, the effect of bankruptcy on the rights of persons who have dealt with a bankrupt, the effect of bankruptcy on family property law and secured transactions law, and the conditions in which a bankrupt may obtain a discharge of his or her debts.

The use of insolvency (reorganization) system contained in Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act and the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act to avoid or facilitate liquidation of business assets has become very common. In this course, the central aspects of the structures and effect of the insolvency system contained in this legislation are explored.

Receivership is a third structure in which insolvency is addressed in Canada. In this context, however, it is most commonly used as a mechanism to enforce broadly-based security interests in property of business debtors. The specific issues that will be examined in the context of equitable receivership include the special position of a receiver-manager and receiverships under The Personal Property Security Act and Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act.

Course and Materials: The majority of the primary course materials are available in electronic format, and will be posted on the course website. Select case law, available both through CanLii (for free) and online library resources and CanLii, will be assigned periodically throughout the semester.

Teaching and Assessment: Various pedagogical techniques are used in this course. Most topics are covered by lectures, then through examination of the law through its application to factual scenarios (i.e. problem sets). Student performance is assessed through an open book final examination for 100% of the course grade. Five students may elect to write a research paper for 30% of their course grade. Students electing to complete a minor research paper must state their intention within the first month of the semester and have the nature and topic of the paper approved by the instructor. These students are required to write the entire final examination for the remainder of their course grade. Students not electing to write a minor research paper will write the open book final examination for 100% of their course grade.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 5

Calendar Description: This course will comprise a survey of frameworks and substantive elements of some areas of intellectual and industrial property law such as copyright, industrial design, trademarks, patents and plant breeders' rights. Approximately one quarter of the course will be devoted to each of copyright, trademarks and patents. Industrial design and plant breeder's rights laws will be treated only in sufficient detail to familiarize students with their scope. Some class time will be allocated to considering the development of and theory underpinning current Canadian and international intellectual property regimes. An examination of developments and challenges associated with internationalization, new technologies, and demands on the law of a post-industrial, digital-age society will be included.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Emphasis: Governments throughout the world are increasingly reliant on innovation to sustain and increase productivity and, hence, living standards. Therefore, intellectual property, the principal legal means for recognizing and monetizing mental productivity, constitutes a critically important and growing repository of commercially and socially valued assets. This course is intended to familiarize students with both the basic concepts of intellectual property law in Canada and its theoretical underpinnings. This course is a general introduction to the present law of intellectual property and a survey of copyright, industrial design, trademark, patent and plant breeders' rights laws. The course will include discussion of principles underlying grants of intellectual property, pertinent legislative frameworks and current issues. The course will also examine benefits and challenges created by the internationalization of intellectual property law schemes and practices and by the emergence of new technologies such as those respecting information and communications and biology and genetics.

Course Materials: A detailed syllabus and a collection of cases and ancillary materials will be supplied by the instructor for use in the course.

Teaching Method: Class time will be devoted to discussion of selected concepts, cases and materials. The format will involve a mixture of lecturing, questioning and general class discussion. Class members are expected to participate in classroom discussion. Classroom learning is an essential element of the course curriculum. The instructor will seek opportunities to engage all members of the class, together and in smaller groups, by allocating tasks related to some small research undertakings such as those involving mandatory writing assignments.

Assessment: Student performance will be based on class participation (10% of final grade) and a short (~10 page) mandatory writing assignment for which topical subject areas will be suggested by the instructor, but specific topics will be chosen by students. Marks on this paper will constitute 20% of each student's final grade. There will also be a written, problem-oriented, open-book, three-hour final examination. Examination results will count for 70% of the final grade of students who do not write minor research papers. Students may request authority to write minor research papers, for 40% of their final grades. Authorization requires permission of the instructor, who will assist students identify appropriate topics and supporting materials. If a minor research paper is written, the remaining 30% of the author's assessment will be based on the final written examination, the same examination written by all other students.

LAW 413.3 CURRENT ISSUES IN LAW REFORM1(2S-1R)

(2022-2023 Howie)

Calendar Description: This Seminar will introduce students to the principles and process that guide the reform of the law. The seminar will use selected readings and presentations by guest lecturers and the professor to provide the foundation for a consideration of the processes, machinery and potential for law reform initiatives in areas of provincial jurisdiction. Students will be introduced to approaches to law reform, interact with the Law Reform Commission of Saskatchewan and will learn about the successes and failures of a number of recent provincial law reform initiatives. Students will also be introduced to legislative drafting.

The core of the course will involve a series of law reform projects selected by the professor and the students that will be undertaken by the class. Students will work in groups, leading in the development of one project and commenting on/critiquing aspects of a second project. Students will undertake group research and develop and present an issues paper on their law reform research project. Following the receipt of feedback, each group will then develop a legislative, regulatory or policy proposal to address the issues associated with their project, prepare background materials that support their approach and present their proposal to a Panel.

Students will also write a short commentary/critique of another group's issues paper and complete a short legislative drafting exercise.

Prerequisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: The course is intended to introduce students to the process of law reform and to provide a 'hands-on' opportunity to undertake a specific law reform initiative. It is also intended to replicate the collaborative processes by which law reform is achieved, including research, policy development and group work. The course will enable students to participate directly in a process by which societal needs are identified and analyzed and in which law can be developed to address these needs.

MATERIALS: Materials for the class will be posted to Canvas.

ASSESSMENT:

Students will be evaluated on the following basis:

Issues Paper and Presentation [GROUP MARK]*	40%
Policy Paper and Presentation [GROUP MARK]*	30%
Critique of Issues Paper [INDIVIDUAL MARK]*	10%
Class Participation/Reflective Exercise [INDIVIDUAL MARK]*	10%
Legislative Drafting Exercise [INDIVIDUAL MARK]	5%
Briefing Note [INDIVIDUAL MARK]	5%

LAW 415.3 MUNICIPAL LAW
(2022-2023 Warwick)

2(3L)

Calendar Description: This course examines the scope and exercise of municipal authority, municipal governance, as well as planning, subdivision, zoning and other means of land use regulation.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: To gain a solid understanding of:

- a) The fundamental principles of municipal authority;
- b) The standards of judicial review of local government action;
- c) Jurisdictional conflict;
- d) Municipal governance;
- e) Land use control, zoning and regulation.

Course Materials: Students will be required to access legislation and cases as assigned.

A syllabus and collection of case and textual materials is prepared by the instructor.

Teaching and Assessment: Materials are covered by the lecture method combined with active class discussion of assigned materials.

Students will be evaluated by an open book final exam (100%).

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 0

Calendar Description: An examination of general topics of insurance law and how legislation and common law deal with these topics in relation to property, life and automobile insurance. Considered topics include classifications of insurance, the legal position of brokers and agents and concepts of indemnity, insurable interest, non-disclosure and misrepresentation, the rights of third parties to recover insurance proceeds, policy interpretation, valuation, subrogation and contribution.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: Although the relationship between an insured and an insurer is usually set out in multi-page contracts, the course is not simply an extension of basic Contract Law. One significant difference is built upon the foundation that the creation of the relationship is not an arm's length transaction. Indeed, the common law theories developed out of a notion that the applicant-insured was in the dominant position although the passage of time and the development of standard form contracts have given the insurers the dominant position. Many forms of insurance contracts are still governed by the common law principles. However, statutes have intervened in a number of areas by preventing pure freedom of contract. This statutory intervention was designed to balance the interests of insurers with the interests of the insured. A prominent aspect of the course is examining both the common law and the statutory law as to whether there has been a proper balancing of the interests.

Applicability of Statutory Intervention in Other Jurisdictions: The statutory intervention into the insurer-insured relationship is done through provincial legislation. In some courses there can be dramatic differences in the way in which individual provinces legislate in relation to subject matter. The statutory intervention in the insurance field tends to be very similar in each of the provinces. This is because of the dominant role played by the national body of the provincial Superintendents of Insurance in proposing and encouraging legislative change at the provincial level.

Why Insurance Law? Practitioners are often faced with clients with insurance problems. Insurance Law, however, shares that characteristic with a large number of other courses taught in the College. Where this course differs from many, however, is that it has relevance for each of you from a personal perspective. Most people have numerous types of insurance either as law students (e.g. extension automobile insurance, home insurance) or after graduation (e.g. life insurance, accident and sickness insurance, errors and omissions insurance). Yet, few understand what their responsibilities are in effecting the contract, during the contract and after a loss has been sustained.

Course Materials: A text is used in the course, supplemented by relevant case reviews.

Assessment: Assessment will be based on an open book final examination worth 100% of each student's grade in the course.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 0

LAW 418.3 SEXUAL ASSAULT
(2022-2023 Vandervort)

1(2S-IR)

Calendar Description: The seminar examines sexual assault in domestic and international criminal and civil law. Topics addressed include: 1) comparison of alternate theoretical conceptualizations and legal definitions of sexual assault; 2) interpretation of current substantive law: consent in the actus reus, consent and voluntariness, mens rea, mistakes of fact and law, the 'reasonable steps' provision; 3) administration of justice in relation to sexual assault: police and prosecutorial practices and policy, determinations of credibility and admissibility of evidence, questions of law and fact, the judicial role, jury instructions, and sentencing; 4) civil actions; 5) criminal compensation boards; 6) the Charter and international human rights law, the UN Declaration of Human Rights, Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW), 1979, Declaration on the Elimination of Violence Against Women, 1993, Statute of the International Criminal Court (Rome Statute), 1998, including recognition of 'rape' and other forms of sexual violence of comparable gravity as 'war crimes' and 'crimes against humanity.'

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: Evidence I LAW 351.3 and Criminal Procedure LAW 423.3 as prerequisites or co-requisites (waived for 2022-2023 though one or both are recommended)

Purpose and Orientation: The seminar examines the administration of justice in relation to the interpretation and application of sexual assault laws. The primary focus is on the criminal legal process, with only limited attention to civil remedies. We analyse cases currently before the courts and the roles of police, prosecutorial, and judicial discretion in shaping the responses of the legal system. Non-Canadian and international criminal and human rights law and legal initiatives provide comparative perspectives. The seminar is especially useful for students who intend to specialize in criminal law or provide legal services in areas of law and policy development dealing with assault, interpersonal or domestic violence, and offences involving abuse of power affecting vulnerable persons or populations.

In 2022, current issues in the administration of justice in Canada with respect to sexual offences include inter alia: (1) Is a specialized sexual offences tribunal, supported by professionals with special training and expertise, desirable? Feasible? How should it be structured? What factors should be considered in the design process?? (2) What steps can and should be taken to improve police and prosecutorial conduct with respect to enforcement and non-enforcement of the laws regulating sexual activity? (3) What steps are required for an adequate response to gender and racialized violence as documented in the Final Report of the Inquiry into Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls? (4) How is sexual violence by extremely impaired assailants to be addressed following the decisions in Brown, Chan, and Sullivan (SCC, 2022) holding that s. 33.1 is unconstitutional?? (5) What are the implications of current research on sexual offence prevention and recidivism for law and policy? (6) Are recent amendments to the sexual assault provisions of the Code constitutional? (7) What issues arise when sexual assault occurs within an institution (military, educational or religious context) and how are these issues best resolved?? (8)

Evidentiary conundrums, including those addressed in recent jurisprudence on credibility, capacity, sexual history, et al.

Required Course Materials: selected cases, statutes, articles, and other materials available on-line. The materials are multi-disciplinary and address a combination of long-standing issues (e.g. controversy over statutory interpretation, one or more parties are intoxicated or impaired or acquainted or minors or otherwise vulnerable due to relationships of power or trust) as well as emerging issues (e.g. institutional responses: sexual assault on campus, in the work-place, in the military, in and by the RCMP/police generally; low rates of reporting, data suggesting that enforcement decisions are arbitrary, complaints and debates about the unprofessional conduct of counsel, and judicial misconduct). The materials include pending and decided cases and analyses of emerging issues. Links to web-sites and reference materials are posted to assist with research.

Instruction: This is a seminar. Students discuss assigned materials guided by questions raised by the students and the instructor. Legal materials and theoretical perspectives needed as background for effective research and writing in this area are introduced through assigned readings, lecture segments, comments, and handouts. A workshop approach is used at key stages over the course of the term to ensure students have opportunities to discuss their research projects with their peers throughout the research and writing process.

Assessment is based on:

- a major research paper (70% - approximately 8750 words)---a research paper based on a proposal approved by the instructor, based on extensive research and demonstrating significant analytic engagement with one or more problems or issues related to the topic selected. Papers that are predominately expository and descriptive are not acceptable. Community based projects may be undertaken if they are initiated early in the term. Proposal, due October 7--10 marks; Outline and bibliography, due November 4--10 marks. Final Draft, due December 2--80 marks.
- with permission of the instructor, students may substitute two minor research papers (70%) with a combined total of about 8750 words. Minor research papers analyze specific materials and issues approved by the instructor, do not require extensive research, and may take the form of case comments or memos on a specific point of law. Minor research papers must be primarily analytic, not expository and descriptive. Proposals, outlines, and final drafts are due on same dates as those set for major research papers.
- posts on the discussion board prior to the weekly seminar meeting in 7 weeks out of 12 weeks, commenting on the assigned readings and responding to posts by other students (15%);
- general seminar participation throughout term (7.5%) and workshop leadership (7.5%) (each student plans and leads a 20-25 minute workshop discussion of unresolved, contested, or potentially controversial issues related to their own research/writing topic, coordinated/organized in consultation with instructor).

- criteria and weight for assessment of the major research paper and on-line comments:
1/3 - style and efficacy in communication/expression; 2/3 - content (demonstrated familiarity with research materials, originality and insight in defining, framing, and analyzing the issues).
- Successful completion of the seminar fulfills the seminar requirement; successful completion of the major or minor research paper satisfies the major or minor research paper requirement. "Success" for marking purposes is defined by the University and College Assessment Regulations.

Major Research Papers Allowed: 15.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: Maximum of 2 per student with permission of the instructor.

LAW 420.3 CURRENT ISSUES IN INSOLVENCY2(2S-1R)

(2022-2023 Arvanitis-Zorbas)

Calendar Description: In our world of growing corporate structures and technology, the practice of insolvency law is changing and adapting. This seminar will examine new and emerging legal issues that today's companies face when they reorganize under the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act. Various issues of corporate restructuring law will be discussed including: the treatment of cannabis companies experiencing financial difficulty, encrypted digital currencies ("cryptocurrencies" or the "bitcoin"), critical suppliers, mass tort claims (i.e. the Red Cross tainted blood scandal), the use of the CCAA to liquidate companies rather than reorganize, and other issues. 2021 brought extreme financial distress to many companies and many of them turned to the CCAA for an opportunity to continue to keep their doors open. We will look at a number of cases throughout the course, including Laurentian University, Target, Sears and Toys 'R' Us.

Prerequisites/Co-requisites: NONE

Course Materials: Readings will be available electronically. Materials will be primarily in the form of journal articles and legal cases.

Teaching: The first few classes will be lecture based to introduce to the students to the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act. Thereafter the students will make a 20-30 minute presentation on their major research paper topics and the class will discuss the issues that arise from the presentation, case law, and articles that they have read for that week's topic. Every student will write a major research paper for this class.

Assessment:

Presentation	15%
Participation	15%
Major research paper	70%

LAW 421.3 LEGAL ETHICS AND PROFESSIONALISM1(3L)

(2022-2023 Buhler)

Calendar Description: This course introduces students to i) the roles, responsibilities and authority of the legal profession and ii) the legal and ethical duties of lawyers in the practice of law. The regulation of various aspects of the profession – admission, regulation of the practice of law, lawyer discipline, etc. are critically examined. As well students will learn the elements of a lawyer's duties to client, the court and others, including himself or herself. This involves an understanding of the lawyer's role in the adversary system, the nature of lawyer-client confidentiality, integrity and conflicts of interest in various roles performed by lawyers.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: The purpose of the course is to examine the roles and responsibilities of the legal profession and the role of the lawyer in the various contexts in which lawyers act in our society.

The course is intended as an introduction to the process of personal development of a conception of the professional role of a lawyer and a critical examination of conceptions of that role. The central issues are framed by jurisprudence related to lawyers and the legal profession, academic writing, the Code of Professional Conduct and real life ethical dilemmas encountered by lawyers, all of which are examined from the perspectives of history, moral criticism, character formation and public policy.

Course Materials: Law Society of Saskatchewan, Code of Professional Conduct; Woolley et al, Lawyers' Ethics and Professional Regulation (Fourth Edition) [required casebook]

Term 1 – Buhler: This class will be taught in person in the fall term. Assessment: There will be several options for assessment, with the option of a 100% final exam OR an exam plus one or more assignments.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 15

LAW 421.3 LEGAL ETHICS AND PROFESSIONALISM2(3L)

(2022-2023 – TERM 2 (s.2) Chiang)

Calendar Description: This course introduces students to (i) the roles, responsibilities and authority of the legal profession and (ii) the legal and ethical duties of lawyers in the practice of law. The regulation of various aspects of the profession – admission, regulation of the practice of law, lawyer discipline, etc. are critically examined. As well students will learn the elements of a lawyer's duties to client, the court and others, including himself or herself. This involves an understanding of the lawyer's role in the adversary system, the nature of lawyer-client confidentiality, integrity and conflicts of interest in various roles performed by lawyers.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: The purpose of the course is to examine the roles and responsibilities of the legal profession and the role of the lawyer in the various contexts in which lawyers act in our society.

The course is intended as an introduction to the process of personal development of a conception of the professional role of a lawyer and a critical examination of conceptions of that role. - Law Society of Saskatchewan, Rules (available online)
- Woolley et al, Lawyers' Ethics and Professional Regulation 4th Edition (required casebook)

Teaching and Assessment: The primary teaching method is by lecture, class discussion, and small group discussion. Assessment is by either (i) open book final examination (50%) and a minor research paper (50%); or (ii) open book final examination only (100%).

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 3

(2022-2023 Watson, J.)

Description: This class will provide students with a general overview of the criminal process namely:

- (1) Arrest and release on bail
- (2) Elections and re-elections for trial
- (3) Role of Crown and defence counsel
- (4) The trial process before judge alone and before a jury
- (5) Pre-trial motions
- (6) Disclosure at trial
- (7) Resolution discussions
- (8) Formalities of information and indictments
- (9) Special pleas and applications
- (10) The appeal process

The class will also deal with The Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms, jurisdiction and remedies. Charter violations, applications for relief, and potential remedies will be reviewed, including:

- (1) Abuse of process
- (2) Unreasonable delay
- (3) Search and seizure
- (4) Detention and arrests
- (5) Right to counsel
- (6) Right to silence

Prerequisite/Co-Requisite: NONE. Although not required, students may find Evidence I (LAW 351.3) helpful in understanding Criminal Procedure.

Course Materials: Learning Canadian Criminal Procedure 13th Edition by Don Stuart and Tim Quigley.

Teaching and Assessment: The primary teaching method is by lecture, interspersed with questions and discussion.

The final examination will be open book for 100% of the mark. If students choose, they may write a major research paper (as per the College's guidelines) on a topic that is approved by the instructor. In that event, the paper will compromise 100% of the final mark.

Major Research Papers Allowed: 5

LAW 425.3 SENTENCING IN THE CRIMINAL JUSTICE SYSTEM2(3L)

(2022-2023 – TERM 2 (s.2) Watson, L.)

Calendar Description: Selected topics relevant to sentencing in the criminal justice system combining theory, doctrine and practice. Emphasis will be placed on the practical aspects of sentencing. The course will focus on the fundamental principles and purposes of sentencing and their application in a variety of contexts including adult offenders, youth offenders, offenders with mental illness and Indigenous offenders. Students should leave the class with the ability to enter a courtroom and speak to sentence on behalf of a client or the Crown.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: The course is designed to fill a gap in the existing curriculum. It is recognized by many of the participants in the criminal justice system including lawyers, judges, probation officers, parole officers, and police that the sentencing aspect is one of the most important parts of the criminal process. It is therefore important to have at least one course dealing with this in the curriculum. More importantly, for a proper understanding of substantive, evidentiary and procedural criminal law, it is necessary to have some understanding of the aims of punishment and the form that it takes. Some of the course will be looking at the theoretical aims of punishment including deterrence, both general and specific, retribution and rehabilitation. While this will necessarily have a philosophical orientation, it will not be discussed in isolation from the actual doctrine and practice of sentencing. Students will also consider the sentencing framework established in the Criminal Code and the legal doctrine and practice associated with that. The course will be taught from a critical and practical standpoint with discussion of the efficacy of achieving the aims sought to be achieved by the criminal justice system.

Course Materials: (2022-2023):

1. Danielle Robitaille and Erin Winocur, Sentencing Principles and Practice, (Toronto: Emond Publishing, 2020) - ISBN 978-1-77255-517-2
2. Annotated Criminal Code

Teaching and Assessment: (2022-2023) Assessment will be based on:

1. 45% for written sentencing brief
2. 45% for oral sentencing submissions
3. 10% for class participation

Attendance must be in compliance with the College of Law Assessment Regulations, see <http://www.law.usask.ca/students/current-students/assessment-regulations.php>

NOTE: Students who require accommodation are encouraged to contact AES as soon as possible or to apply to the College of Law by the appropriate deadlines.

If you are unable to complete the assignments on the dates scheduled, you must contact the Associate Dean without delay.

The sentencing brief and mock sentencing will be at the end of the term. The schedule for them will be released later in the term.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 0

In 2021-22, many moots remained online. We are anticipating that most will go back to normal (in person), but should know more by late summer. If you are interested in the upper year moots, keep an eye out for an announcement in late August or right at the start of term. You will have a chance to apply for any moots that interest you. We typically run interviews or try-outs on the second weekend in September

Calendar Description: Participation in the Gale Moot Competition is required. It is anticipated that the 2023 Gale Cup Moot will be held in person. It will involve research and advocacy, both oral and written, on a complex case or problem in the field of criminal and/or constitutional law. Students are responsible for the preparation of both an Appellant's and a Respondent's factum and will participate in multiple practice moots prior to the competition. Recommended for students with an interest in public speaking and exacting research.

Course Content

a) outline:

This seminar is for students of the College of Law who wish to take part in the Gale Moot Competition. The Gale Moot is held annually and attracts teams from law schools across Canada. Historically, the Gale Cup Moot has been held at Osgoode Hall in Toronto, but it is likely that the 2023 moot will be held in Ottawa, Ontario. The case argued by the students is a recent Supreme Court decision in the criminal/constitutional law area. The students are responsible for the preparation of both an Appellant's factum and a Respondent's factum, and will participate in multiple practice moots prior to the competition. The number of moots participated in the competition will depend on how far the team advances in the competition. The final two rounds will be judged by three judges which historically has included a current Justice from the Supreme Court of Canada. Every fourth year the winner of the Gale Moot is Canada's representative in the Commonwealth Moot.

b) objective:

To provide students with an opportunity to perform in-depth research, analysis, writing and advocacy in the criminal/constitutional law area. Students will develop their appellate advocacy skills through argument and presentation to actual appellate court judges.

Means of Evaluation

The means of evaluation will be the same as for the Laskin Moot (LAW 441.3).

Additional Information

There are four students on the College Gale Moot team.

Calendar Description: This course examines:

- the law surrounding the execution, construction and revocation of wills, powers of attorney, and advanced health care directives;
- issues of probate, survivorship, intestate succession, dependants' relief, and family issues as they relate to wills and estates, including a discussion of the law surrounding adult guardianship applications;
- pre and post-mortem tax planning opportunities relating to wills and estates.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: Everyone dies. Some people plan for this by having a will – others do not. Lawyers are often called upon to assist clients in ordering their personal and financial affairs in the event of incapacity or death. Alternatively, lawyers are called on to deal with issues arising when no planning has been done.

The course is designed to provide students with the skills necessary to determine the order of death of individuals, determine the validity of wills, and determine how property is distributed upon death, whether or not the individual had a will.

The making, alteration, revocation, republication, and revival of wills are examined from the perspective of the court of probate, which determines what documents and words comprise the will. Issues concerning how the property is to be distributed are examined from the perspective of the court of construction, which rules on what the words used in the will mean. Differing approaches of the two courts to matters such as standard and burden of proof and admissibility of evidence are compared.

The course also deals with intestate succession to property not disposed of by will and with claims that may be made outside of the will under dependants' relief, family property, insurance, and trust law.

Course Materials: There is no required text. Much reference will be made to relevant case law and Saskatchewan legislation, including The Wills Act, Wills Regulations, Intestate Succession Act, Administration of Estates Act, Administration of Estates Regulations, Powers of Attorney Act, Powers of Attorney Regulations, Adult Guardianship and Co-Decision-Making Act, and Health Care Directives and Substitute Health Care Decision Makers Act.

Reference will be made to certain commentaries, articles and text – Albert Oosterhoff, et al, Oosterhoff on Wills, 9th ed. (Toronto: Thomson Reuters, 2021) (Oosterhoff on Wills).

Teaching and Assessment: Instruction is by lecture, discussion and classroom activities. Students will participate in group assignments worth 30% and write a final exam worth 70% of the course mark.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 0

LAW 430.3: NEGOTIATION AND DISPUTE RESOLUTION1&2 (3L)

2022-2023 Term 1: Keet (ss.1&3), Baerg (s.6), Scharfstein/Fingerote (s.7)

Term 2: Fingerote (s.2), Scharfstein/Baerg (s.5)

 Note that s. 2 (Fingerote, Term 2) ONLY is all online. The remaining sections are in person. See the document called "Course Planning in the DR Courses" if you'd like more detail.*

 Also, s. 5 (Scharfstein/Baerg, Term 2) follows the same curriculum as the other courses, but with an exclusive focus on business law. (The general Negotiation courses include business, but other types of legal scenarios as well.)*

Calendar Description: This course examines the form and function of negotiation as a problem-solving process. Negotiation is critical to lawyers and others concerned with preventing or resolving disputes. We study effective negotiation from theoretical, critical and practical perspectives, placing emphasis on the lawyer's role in negotiation.

Prerequisite: *First-Year Dispute Resolution Program
(Or, for exchange students, equivalent prior training.)

Purpose and Orientation: This is the core upper-year course in negotiation. It builds on the introduction in first year and provides the foundation for other courses in negotiation and dispute resolution. We address negotiation through hands-on simulations, encouraging you to develop problem-solving skills. You reflect critically on the lawyer's role as a communicator, problem-solver, advisor and advocate in the context of both transactional and dispute negotiation. We also invite you to consider issues of negotiation ethics, professionalism, legal contexts, strategy and the use of related processes such as mediation and collaborative law.

Texts: Materials are distributed through the course page. Students also have to purchase a supplementary e-text, for a total cost of approximately $30. Information about this is also provided after registration.

Teaching and Assessment: Course work includes in-class and out-of-class simulated negotiations (depending on the instructor, this may include such exercises as an email negotiation or a videotaped negotiation), as well as written reflective assignments and in-class debriefings of what took place in the exercises. The emphasis is on formative assessment (development of skills over time) and collaborative learning. There is no exam. The course is not eligible for either the major or minor research paper credit. Class size is limited to 20.

LAW 431.3 Advanced Constitutional Law
(2022-2023 Carter)

2(2S-1R)

Calendar Description: This seminar will examine selected current issues in constitutional law, including issues of constitutional theory, federalism and the constitutional protection of rights and freedoms.

Prerequisites/Co-requisites: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: This course provides students with a fuller appreciation and knowledge of selected issues of interest and importance for contemporary constitutional theory and law, and the course allows students to explore their own interests in this area. These objectives are pursued through reading and analysis of recent academic literature and judicial decisions, and by discussing students' reactions, questions, and ideas about the literature – and other Constitutional issues that may be of interest to them - in the unique, wide-ranging fashion that a seminar allows. The course also allows students to develop their own academic research and writing skills through the preparation of major research paper.

Assessment: 20% of the final grade will be based on seminar participation. In each seminar, two or more students will be asked to introduce the readings and issues they raise.

80% of the grade will be based on a research paper. Students will have the option of meeting their major research paper requirement with this paper.

LAW 432.3 HUMAN RIGHTS
(2022-2023 North)

2(2S-1R)

Calendar Description: An understanding of universalism, the meaning of human rights theory, and international underpinnings. The concept of discrimination and the quasi-constitutional position of human rights in Canada. An understanding of the concept of equality enshrined in s.15 of the Charter. Detailed analysis of human rights laws in Canada, with particular focus on Saskatchewan.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: The seminar serves as a vehicle for research and writing in the field of human rights. The range of topics available for papers is very broad. Depending on students' interests and university pre-law backgrounds, legal theory, history, and contemporary substantive legal issues may be pursued. There is a wealth of literature available for student papers.

Course Materials: Materials to be made available through law library or online

Teaching and Assessment: The seminar begins with several sessions led by the instructor, based upon assigned readings. These materials begin with some scholarship on the idea of human rights, then move to some current international human rights issues and conclude with a detailed study of equality and discrimination doctrine in Canada. By the midpoint of the term seminars are led by students on topics relating to their research projects [20%]. Papers submitted in this seminar will fulfill the major writing requirement [80%]. The seminar is conducted as a colloquium with discussion and debate being a central objective as almost any aspect of human rights discourse raises inherently contestable moral questions.

LAW 435.3 LAW AND ECONOMICS1(2S-1R)

(2022-2023 Donald)

Description: This seminar will apply economic principles to analyze legal principles. Topics covered will include the economic analysis of major areas of the common law, namely, property law, tort law and contract law. Other topics include:

- (i) the economic approach to corporate law
- (ii) behavioral economics; and
- (iii) competition law.

As the various topics are covered, students will see how the law addresses certain kinds of recurring economic problems, including prisoners' dilemmas, transactions costs, externalities, asymmetric information, principal-agent problems, and free-rider problems. A previous background in economics is not required.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Course materials: Certain textbooks are recommended. Other textbook materials will be made available on reserve. Other materials will be downloaded from Hein Online, jstor.org and case law databases.

Teaching and Assessment: Meetings will typically include a lecture component by the instructor on certain technical aspects of reading materials. Students are expected to participate with each other and the instructor in a general discussion about the readings assigned for any specific meeting. Students will write a major research paper due at the end of term (worth 80%). After the mid-point of the term, students will give a short presentation on their proposed paper topics (worth 4%) (on a pass/fail basis). As well, during the term, students are expected to write three short essays on problems to be assigned (once monthly, each worth 4% for a total of 12%), and they will be evaluated on their participation in classroom discussion (worth 4%).

LAW 436.3 ABORIGINAL LAW1(3L)

(2022-2023 Lavallee)

Calendar Description: The Aboriginal peoples of Canada; Aboriginal title and Aboriginal rights, treaties and the treaty-making process, including hunting and fishing rights, Natural Resources Transfer Agreements; the Metis; land claims; federal and provincial jurisdiction over Aboriginal peoples and lands; Indian Act, including membership and Bill C-31; constitutional recognition and protection of the rights of Aboriginal peoples; Aboriginal self-determination.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Emphasis: The course is a survey of Canadian law as it relates to Aboriginal people in a legal, political and social context. The materials illustrate the importance of colonial theory and historical patterns in understanding contemporary issues concerning Aboriginal peoples and attempts to resolve them. Current issues are emphasized throughout the course.

Course materials: TBD.

Teaching and Assessment: The primary teaching methods is by lecture interspersed with discussion and questions, including hypotheticals/fact scenarios, which will be available on Canvas. Assessment is generally 80% final examination and 20% for class participation.

Students may elect to write a minor research paper in lieu of a final exam. Proposals for other assessment alternatives may also be considered.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 5

LAW 438.3 ECONOMIC INEQUALITY POVERTY AND THE LAW
(2022-2023 Wieggers)

2(2S-1R)

Calendar Description: Examines the causes and impacts of economic inequality and poverty in Canada. Considers various definitions of poverty and inequality and the relationships between poverty and economic inequality and race, gender, disability and class. Explores the role of law in creating, regulating and/or alleviating poverty and economic inequality.

Prerequisite(s): NONE

Purpose and Emphasis: This seminar will explore the social and economic conditions that give rise to poverty and economic inequality in Canada and engage in a critical discussion of the legal system's response to issues of distributive justice and social inclusion.

The seminar begins by examining various definitions of poverty and empirical assessments of wealth and income inequality globally and in Canada. We will examine and assess different perspectives on the causes of poverty and economic inequality in market economies and consider the relationship between economic inequality and gender, class, race, Indigeneity, and disability-based social inequalities. The role of electoral law, colonial and property law, criminal, welfare, labour and tax law in creating, compounding or alleviating conditions of poverty and inequality will be explored, as will the effectiveness of various strategies for legal change including tax reform, test case and Charter litigation, and, if time permits, civil disobedience. Students will also be encouraged to consider the relationship between economic inequality and other areas of law such as corporations law, environmental law, and consumer protection law. Wherever possible, legal issues particularly relevant to residents of Saskatchewan will be examined.

Some of the conceptual objectives of the seminar are: to increase students' understanding of the incidence and distribution of poverty and the causes of poverty and economic inequality in Canada; to identify distinctive issues in the legal treatment of economic inequality and poverty under welfarist and neo-liberal regimes; to explore the impact of different areas of the law and different forms of legal regulation on people living in poverty and on conditions of inequality more generally; to discuss and consider the potential for law reform and develop a critical analysis of the relevance and role of law and legal action in addressing inequality and social exclusion; and to provide students with an opportunity to develop or refine their skills in research and in the written and oral analysis of the above issues.

Course Materials: Reading materials will be placed online on Canvas.

Assessment: Evaluation will consist of class participation and presentations (25%) and two minor research papers OR a major research paper (75%).

LAW 439.3 MEDIATION1&2(3L)

(2022-2023 - TERM 1 (s.1) Dumonceaux; TERM 2 (ss.2&3) Yates)

Calendar Description: Mediation—broadly speaking, the process of assisting the negotiations of others—is being increasingly used to resolve legal disputes. This course explores mediation from both theoretical and practical perspectives. As well as examining the structure and different approaches to mediation, students will develop skills for engaging the mediation process effectively in every role. While students will experience and study mediation from a variety of perspectives, it is the implication for their role as lawyers that forms the common theme.

Prerequisite: It is very highly recommended that students complete LAW 430.3 Negotiation before taking this course.

Purpose and Orientation: The course considers the use of mediation in various contexts, which may include family, wills and estates, labour, commercial and personal injury law. Issues explored may include barriers to resolution, cultural influences, coaching parties for effective participation, and the role of power and the law in mediation. Through the use of simulations, students experience the mediation process as lawyers, clients and mediators.

Required Text: Under review. Student will be advised

Teaching and Assessment: Teaching is based on a combination of lecture, demonstrations, simulations and skill-building exercises with individual and group reflections on those exercises. Assessment is based on the following components:

65% Journal (multiple entries throughout the term; two submissions)

20% Assignments (four throughout the term worth 5% each)

15% Class Attendance and Participation (evaluated every class)

Although written work will be required, LAW 439.3 is not eligible for either the major or minor research paper credit. Class size is limited to 20.

LAW 440.3 INNOVATION IN JUSTICE: THE DEAN'S FORUM ON ACCESS TO JUSTICE AND DISPUTE RESOLUTION 2(3S)
(2022-2023 B. Lowenberger)

It is our intent to offer - for an eleventh year - the experiential course below. The course is typically offered in Term 2 for six upper-year students on an application basis. Further details and the application deadline will be announced during the fall term. It is a unique opportunity for a small group of students to develop justice policy alongside leading members of the legal profession.

JUSTICE INNOVATION: DEAN'S FORUM ON DISPUTE RESOLUTION AND ACCESS TO JUSTICE

Nation-wide conversations about Access to Justice continue to play out, with the Cromwell Report* an important touchstone. The first ten meetings of the Dean's Forum on Dispute Resolution and Access to Justice were held in September 2013, March 2014, March 2015, February 2016, March 2017, March 2018, March 2019, March 2020, March 2021 and March 2022: a gathering of a couple dozen leaders in the Saskatchewan legal and justice community. During the last ten years, a small group of students participated in the Dean's Forum project for course credit. They conducted research on the Forum's themes, prepared and presented policy discussion papers, helped design the consultative/planning process, and participated fully in the Forum event. A summary of the Dean's Forum initiative is published on the College of Law website: <http://law.usask.ca/deansforum>.

A video by previous Dean's Forum students is published on YouTube:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=sbJY9gQb6wU>.

The project will continue, with an eleventh Forum planned for 2023. The general themes for this year's Forum are currently being developed, and will be assigned near the end of the fall term.

Prior demonstrated leadership in dispute resolution and access to justice initiatives, as well as prior academic performance will be factors in the selection of students for the course. The course will be scheduled based on the successful candidates' availability.

If you have any questions about previous years' projects, or the direction of this year's, please do not hesitate to contact Dean's Forum course instructor, Director of CREATE Justice, and Access to Justice Coordinator, Brea Lowenberger (at b.lowenberger@usask.ca).

LAW 441.3 LASKIN MOOT
(2022-2023 Sembalerus)

1/2Oct.-Mar.

In 2021-22, many moots remained online. We are anticipating that most will go back to normal (in person), but should know more by late summer. If you are interested in the upper year moots, keep an eye out for an announcement in late August or right at the start of term. You will have a chance to apply for any moots that interest you. We typically run interviews or try-outs on the second weekend in September

Calendar Description: This seminar is designed to provide academic supervision and credit for the four students who are members of the College team in the Laskin Memorial Moot Court competition. Participants do research and written and oral advocacy on a complex problem in administrative and constitutional law. The seminar is recommended for those with an interest in advocacy, exacting research, and public law issues. The Laskin Moot is a bilingual (French/English) competition where a minimum of one of the four team members participates in French. Laskin 2023 will be held in Halifax on February 23, 24 and 25.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE. Administrative Law is recommended.

Purpose and Orientation: Participation in appellate moot competitions provides an excellent means to obtain advocacy experience.

Two factums are prepared by the team and the four students moot twice in competition and many more times at the College in preparation for competition. All interested students are invited to be interviewed on "Moot try-out day" which will occur during the first few weeks of Term 1. Team selection will be completed shortly thereafter.

The team receives the moot problem in early October. The moot competition itself occurs around the end of the third week in February. Three hours academic credit are earned in the Spring term by each of the five participants.

Assessment: Evaluation is based on the student's written and oral work, as well as participation at meetings and practices. The teams' performance in the final competition is based on 66% of the marks for oral presentations and 33% of the marks for the factums. The College's evaluation will be influenced by the same mark allocation, but will also depend on the discretion of the instructor based on the College's evaluation criteria.

LAW 443.3 INDIGENOUS PEOPLES AND THE CRIMINAL PROCESS2(2S-1R)

(2022-2023 Peterson)

Calendar Description: This seminar will be designed to give exposure to a myriad of subtopics relating generally to the relationship between the criminal process of Canadian law and Indigenous peoples living within Turtle Island. From Policing to Sentencing Indigenous peoples have been over-represented and mistreated by the Canadian criminal system at all stages. Certainly there is significant alienation from police and courts. The Supreme Court of Canada has acknowledged that the system has been systemically racist in the sentencing decisions in Gladue and Ipeelee. Indeed, Gladue, while appearing to have not had much of an impact, is being used in many stages of the criminal process beyond sentencing. The seminar will be designed to explore the myriad of reasons for the alienation of Indigenous peoples and search for solutions thereto. The seminar will provide readings in a wide range of historical and modern sources to provide a strong grounding for the student in relevant topics.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Note: Criminal Procedure and Sentencing Law are recommended

Purpose and Orientation: Recent events have proven to many that there are significant issues that need to address the lack of justice Indigenous peoples receive within Canadian criminal law. This was the focus of several of the recommendations of the TRC in 2015 and many issues were further brought to light by several high-profile trials in 2017-18. This seminar will be designed to explore the myriad of reasons and frustrations Indigenous peoples experience within the Canadian criminal law. New developments, especially relating to the over-incarceration of Indigenous offenders, will be a major focus.

Course Materials:

Recommended:

1) Jonathan Rudin, Indigenous People and the Criminal Justice System: a Practitioners Handbook, (Toronto: Emond Publishing, 2018).

2) An annotated Criminal Code

Textbooks can be purchased at Turning the Tide Bookstore

Student Evaluation: Evaluation based on:

Option 1: Major Research Paper (see academic regulations for the College of Law for Major Research Paper definition)

- Major Research Paper (70%)
- Class Presentation (20%)
- Class Participation (10%)

Option 2: Minor Research Paper (see academic regulations for the College of Law for Minor Research Paper definition)

- Minor Research Paper (70%)
- Class Presentation (20%)

- Class Participation (10%)

Paper(s) must be on a topic relating to the substantive content of the course, to be approved by the course instructor in advance.

Class participation: Attendance, engaged discussion based on assigned readings and thoughtful consideration of the issues and the insights of other students.

Class presentation: A presentation on the student's paper topic.

LAW 444.3 ENVIRONMENTAL LAW2(3L)

(2022-2023 Ralston)

Course Description: This course will provide a survey of both actual and potential roles for law to play in protecting the integrity of the environment from exploitation of resources, rapid development, and population growth, among other causes. Core topics will include recent developments and debates in Canadian environmental law, such as coordination and the appropriate distribution of responsibilities among different levels of government and private actors, the roles of public and private law, and environmental law's interdisciplinary dimensions.

Learning Objectives:

1. Explore various theoretical debates over the appropriate role for law to play in management and protection of the environment;
2. Explore how international, federal, provincial, municipal, and Indigenous forms of law and policy-making relate to one another in the management and protection of the environment in Canada;
3. Identify how common law causes of action and constitutional rights have been employed in relation to environmental management and protection in Canada;
4. Develop a practical understanding of the core federal and provincial statutory frameworks for environmental management and protection, with a particular focus on Saskatchewan;
5. Develop a practical understanding of the available tools for environmental regulatory enforcement, including investigation, prosecution, and sentencing for regulatory offences;
6. Explore how impact assessment practices seek to address environmental impacts from specific projects as well as governmental plans, policies, and programs;
7. Explore how spatial tools and strategies are being used to address environmental management and protection in Canada and internationally; and
8. Critically evaluate existing legal tools and strategies for environmental management and protection in Canada and explore potential avenues for reforms.

Required Resources:

All required readings for this course will be supplied to you through your Blackboard course, including the "Discussion Board" function, or can be obtained online through the University of Saskatchewan library website or otherwise.

Supplementary Resources (Optional):

- Chris Tollefson & Meinhard Doelle, Environmental Law: Cases and Materials, 3rd ed. (Toronto: Thompson Reuters, 2019)
- Paul Muldoon et al, An Introduction to Environmental Law and Policy in Canada, 3rd ed. (Toronto: Emond Montgomery Publications Ltd, 2020)

- William A. Tilleman et al, Environmental Law and Policy, 4th ed. (Toronto: Emond Montgomery Publications Ltd, 2020)

Teaching and Evaluation:

Final Exam (Default)

Value: 70% of final grade

Date: TBD.

Description: The final exam will be administered as a comprehensive invigilated 2.5 hour exam and may include questions on any of the topics covered in lectures and corresponding readings during this course. It will include both a fact pattern and a policy question.

Major Research Paper (By Special Request)

Value: 70% of final grade

Date: Must be completed and submitted by last day of classes for the term (April 4, 2023).

Description: At the sole discretion of the instructor, up to five students enrolled in this course will be authorized to complete a major research paper in lieu of the final exam. Students writing major research papers in this course are still expected to review the course materials and attend class as they will be responsible for demonstrating knowledge of the course materials in their work as relevant to their chosen research topic. Further details will be set out in the syllabus and discussed at the beginning of the course.

Law Reform Submission

Value: 30% of final grade

Date: Must be completed and submitted by last day of classes for the term (April 4, 2023).

Description: All students will be required to complete a law reform submission in collaboration with one or two of their classmates as a group or partner assignment (depending on enrollment numbers). Further details will be set out in the syllabus and discussed at the beginning of the course.

LAW 447.3 ABORIGINAL RIGHTS MOOT
(2022-2023 Paul)

1/2Oct.-Mar.

In 2021-22, many moots remained online. We are anticipating that most will go back to normal (in person), but should know more by late summer. If you are interested in the upper year moots, keep an eye out for an announcement in late August or right at the start of term. You will have a chance to apply for any moots that interest you. We typically run interviews or try-outs on the second weekend in September

Calendar Description: The Aboriginal Rights Moot is a moot structured on the traditional Aboriginal circle consensus-building process. It is designed to allow law students to debate and discuss Aboriginal rights issues vital to the Aboriginal Peoples.

Prerequisite or Co-requisite: LAW 436.3

Note: Team is chosen in October and competition takes place in March.

Description: The Kawaskimhon (speaking with knowledge) Aboriginal Rights Moot is a culturally sensitive national forum where issues regarding Aboriginal rights are debated by students from across Canada. Kawaskimhon is a great opportunity for law students to speak to issues of Aboriginal rights. Kawaskimhon is hosted each year by a different law school.

This event is a two day forum. On the first day participants present oral arguments based on written submitted factums or other legal documents. At the end of the first day the host law school prepares a cultural night which usually includes a banquet, singers, and dancers. Kawaskimhon participants are required to work toward reaching consensus on the mooted problems or issues by the end of the second day. Band membership rights, territorial overlaps, the effects of hydro projects on First Nation lands, Métis rights and the history of missing Indigenous women in Canada are some of the topics this moot has explored.

LAW 448.3 DISPUTE RESOLUTION MOOT2(3S)

(2022-2023 Keet)

In 2021-22, many moots remained online. We are anticipating that most will go back to normal (in person), but should know more by late summer. If you are interested in the upper year moots, keep an eye out for an announcement in late August or right at the start of term. You will have a chance to apply for any moots that interest you. We typically run interviews or try-outs on the second weekend in September

Calendar Description: Lawyers use dispute resolution skills in various procedural settings, and often advocate for their clients in negotiation and mediation processes. This course offers students an opportunity for intensive skill development in dispute resolution, negotiation and mediation advocacy through a competitive moot experience. It may also include a client counseling and interviewing component.

Prerequisite: LAW 430.3. In the first half of September, a call for applications is circulated to students and the coach selects students after an interview process. Students who have taken the Negotiation course will have an advantage in applying for this moot. Typically, students who make it on the team take course credit for it in Term 2.

Teaching and Assessment:

Students within the larger Dispute Resolution Moot Team may train together on negotiation and other dispute resolution skills, and then break off into sub-teams to attend a range of competitions. Competitions attended in the past include those focused on Mediation Advocacy (in lawyer-client pairs), Negotiation (lawyer-lawyer), and Client Counseling (lawyers interviewing and counseling clients). Competitions are typically held over a weekend in February or March. We may not know which competition(s) we are attending until the team is selected. Each student on this team will have the opportunity to attend one competition, and to work with the rest of the team as all get prepared.

In preparation for the competition, students participate in a training program which includes practice sessions, feedback from outside guests, videotaping and reviewing simulations, and completing readings and reflective writing assignments. Practice sessions will be scheduled to accommodate the availability of the team members, and the coach.

Moot training is more intense in the months of January and February, with most of the work completed by early March. A few practice sessions may also be held in Term 1.

If you have any questions about this moot team, contact Professor Keet at m.keet@usask.ca.

LAW 450.3 WESTERN CANADA MOOT\SOPINKA CUP
(2022-2023 Johnson)

1/2Oct.-Mar.

In 2021-22, many moots remained online. We are anticipating that most will go back to normal (in person), but should know more by late summer. If you are interested in the upper year moots, keep an eye out for an announcement in late August or right at the start of term. You will have a chance to apply for any moots that interest you. We typically run interviews or try-outs on the second weekend in September

This course includes classroom sessions as well as practice trials. As court appearances have started to take place remotely, we will conduct some practice trials virtually so as to provide students the opportunity to learn to navigate the courtroom both in-person and not.

Calendar Description: This course involves preparation and participation in a trial advocacy moot initially involving the seven western Canadian law schools followed by a national competition. Participants are involved in juried trial relating to a problem in evidence, criminal procedure and/or criminal law. Participants are expected to prepare opening juror addresses, examinations-in-chief, cross examinations, and closing arguments. In addition, there is research on various evidentiary points which arise during the course of argument.

Note: there are no prerequisites for this course although it is desirable that students will have completed a course in either evidence or criminal procedure.

LAW 452.3 TRIAL ADVOCACY2(3L)

(2022-2023 Zakreski)

Calendar Description: Advocacy techniques, practice and tactics in a trial setting. Topics covered will include: the essentials of direct examination and cross examination, chambers advocacy, examinations for discovery, impeachment of witnesses, occurrence witness testimony, expert witnesses, the use of exhibits, closing arguments and addresses.

Prerequisite: LAW 384.3 Civil Procedure

Purpose and Orientation: The course is designed to introduce students to the conduct of a civil trial. The emphasis is on making students confident and comfortable in a trial setting. Students will undertake counsel roles including a short trial near the end of the term. Role plays will begin with client preparation, pre-trial steps such as basic pleadings, chambers applications, examinations for discovery and direct and cross-examination techniques. Building on this, students will proceed through evidentiary matters such as the use of exhibits, impeachment of witnesses, the use of experts in a trial and eye witness testimony. Other topics will include trial tactics, objections and responding to objections, procedural matters, opening statements and closing addresses.

Course Materials: Case files are created by the instructor and students. The text used is Stuesser, An Advocacy Primer, 4th ed., Carswell, 2015.

Teaching and Assessment: The instructor gives an introduction to each topic area and will endeavour to provide coaching and a critique of student's performances. Students are encouraged to assess each other. The course is assessed on the basis of advocacy roles, class participation including a short trial. The remainder of the mark is based on a trial brief.

LAW 452.3 TRIAL ADVOCACY2(3L)

(2022-2023 (s.3) A. Smith – This section has a criminal jury trial focus)

(This is an application-based class)Prerequisite: LAW 351.3 Evidence I*Criminal Procedure is an asset but not a prerequisite.

Please note: This is an application-based class. To apply, students must send an e-mail to the instructor at ams085@mail.usask.ca indicating why they would like to take part in the course and identify if they have met the prerequisite requirement (LAW 351.3, Evidence) or are intending on meeting the prerequisite requirement in Term 1. The application deadline is Friday, July 15, 2022. Students will receive notification of selection approximately a week after the deadline. Students who have been selected for this class should then contact Louise Ferguson (louise.ferguson@usask.ca) to receive information on how to register for this class.

Purpose and Orientation: This course is designed to provide students with the skills to understand and conduct a criminal jury trial. Students will learn how to deliver opening and closing statements, conduct examinations-in-chief and cross-examinations, learn how to utilize exhibits, make and respond to objections and address evidentiary issues which may arise during trial. Other topics such as witness preparation, pre-trial steps, jury selection, sentencing and the differences between civil trials and criminal trials will also be discussed.

Course Materials: None.

Teaching and Assessment: Students will be provided instruction on the identified topic areas and given an opportunity to present portions of a trial prior to running a criminal jury trial at the conclusion of the term. Students will be provided feedback on their presentations by the instructor and their peers. Guest speakers may be utilized as time permits.

Students will be assessed based on their preparation and participation in class, their performance on any advocacy component presented in class and their criminal jury trial.

LAW 453.3 ABORIGINAL LAW & POLICY IN CANADA1(2S-1R)

(2022-2023 Lavallee)

Calendar description: An overview of historical and contemporary legal and policy developments affecting Indigenous peoples and their interests in Canada, and an examination of the relationship between colonialism and law and policy in this area. The emphasis will be on developments since the second half of the 20th century. Both Aboriginal Law (Canadian law) and Indigenous Law (laws of Indigenous Nations) will be considered.

Prerequisite or Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: The aim of this course is to give students an overview of the main historical and contemporary legal and policy developments affecting Indigenous peoples and their interests in Canada, and to examine the relationship between colonialism, and law and policy in this area. Legal and policy institutions and processes will be examined, as well as the social and political context in which the law and policy operate. Students will gain an enhanced understanding of the law by examining its context, its effects and the relationship between the functions of the various branches of government in respect to the interests of Indigenous peoples. Specific topics covered in past sessions included a Cree perspective on treaties in Saskatchewan, consultation issues, Treaty Land Entitlement in Saskatchewan, modern treaties and treaty processes, residential schools, and alternative approaches to child welfare and the criminal justice system.

Materials: Materials will be available on Canvas.

Teaching: This seminar is conducted as a colloquium designed to promote discussion and debate. Initial sessions will be led by the instructor, often joined by a guest speaker, and based upon assigned readings. Subsequent sessions will be led by students on topics related to their research.

Assessment: 1. Major research paper (approximately 35-40 pages): 80% of the final grade.
2. Class participation: 20% of the final grade.

LAW 455.3 OIL AND GAS LAW2(3L)

(2022-2023 Heavin)

Calendar Description: This course introduces students to oil and gas law. Topics addressed will include: the nature of interests in oil and gas; rights of mineral interest holders inter se and the operation of the rule of capture; acquisition of freehold interests in oil and gas; the freehold oil and gas lease; estoppel, waiver and involuntary termination; disposition of minerals by the Crown; oil and gas conservation (pooling unitization and shut-in wells); and, surface rights.

Prerequisites/Co-requisites: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: Lawyers in Saskatchewan and Alberta regularly advise clients on their rights and obligations in relation to oil and gas law generally and oil and gas leases specifically. This course is designed to introduce students to the body of law associated with the regulation and exploitation of oil and gas including industry background; the nature of oil and gas interests; interpretation of Crown and freehold leases; surface rights acquisition, compensation and reclamation; and an overview of Federal and Provincial government regulation of the Oil and Gas Industry.

Course Materials: A detailed syllabus and case book is prepared for this course.

Teaching and Assessment: This course will be taught using lectures and discussion. Students will be expected to have read the relevant materials prior to class to facilitate class discussion. Students will be assessed through a minimum of one written assignment and an open-book final examination.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: Unlimited

LAW 456.3 CONFLICT OF LAWS2(3L)

(2022-2023 Hansen)

Calendar Description: Conflict of Laws, or Private International Law as it is also widely known, deals with the analysis and resolution of legal problems involving more than one jurisdiction. Using cases primarily from tort, contract, property and family law, the student learns how to characterize a legal issue, how to determine which jurisdiction is the most appropriate forum, and which jurisdiction's law governs the issue, and how to evaluate the significance of factors that influence recognition and enforcement of the foreign judgment.

Prerequisites/Co-requisites: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: Conflict of Laws (a.k.a. Private International Law) is potentially one of the most intellectually demanding but also most important classes of one's law school career. Knowledge of conflict of laws is essential for any practitioner who deals with private law issues involving any "foreign" facts, parties, events, or laws. ("Foreign" here means extra-provincial as well as international.) To take just a few examples, you cannot operate at the required standard of legal competence without knowledge of conflict of laws if you are advising someone on a damages claim concerning a foreign tort, engaged in estate planning where there are assets in more than one jurisdiction, or dealing with a division of spousal property where the spouses have moved from one jurisdiction to another during their relationship. Conflict of laws, of course, takes on an increased importance in a globalizing world, and knowledge of both Canadian and foreign conflict of laws principles is essential in the context of various transnational legal arrangements and transnational litigation. Conflict of laws can raise very challenging conceptual issues, but the instructor works to make the course as accessible as possible.

During the course, we are going to examine at length the traditional doctrinal approach to conflict of laws within Canadian common law, as dramatically modified in recent years. At the end of the course, students will not be experts on conflict of laws, but they should be able to work effectively with the doctrinal principles as applied to fact scenarios of a reasonable level of difficulty. We will also spend some time examining theoretical writings on conflict of laws and reform efforts advanced through the common law, statutes, and international conventions, and students at the end of the course should be able to offer some insightful critiques of possible versions of conflict of laws doctrine. Finally, we will also consider briefly applications of conflict of laws in some selected current areas.

The course is thus aimed at sensitizing students to a range of conflict of laws issues and helping them develop intellectual tools to confront such issues. Some of the instruction will be through lecture format (though with the instructor calling upon students extensively), and some will involve breaking the class down into smaller groups examining particular problem scenarios. The material can be challenging and the expectations within the course are not low, but the understandings and legal intellectual development attained are worth it. Many past students have indicated that they have used the course extensively in the early years of practice and appreciated that they took the course rather than trying to learn it on their own.

Course Materials: The main legal materials will be provided on Canvas. In addition, there is a mandatory text, which students have found very helpful in past years: Stephen Pitel & Nicholas Rafferty, Conflict of Laws, 2nd Edition (Irwin 2016).

Assessment: The current plan (subject to modification based on the ultimate class size) is that students will complete two short assignments together worth 30% of the mark and an open book final exam for the remaining 70%. Students who successfully ballot for a minor research paper in this course and identify an appropriate conflict of laws topic that the instructor approves within the first two weeks of class will have that paper count for 40% and will complete just one assignment for 15% of the marks, with the final exam providing the remaining 45%.

LAW 457.3 INTERNATIONAL LAW1(3L)

(2022-2023 Omoruyi)

Calendar Description: An examination of the legal principles governing the conduct of states and other subjects of international law. Topics studied will include the creation and ascertainment of international law, application of international law in domestic and international tribunals, sovereign immunity, diplomatic relations, law of armed conflict, international protection of human rights, and international environmental protection.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: The course introduces students to the basic principles and structure of international law. It is designed to acquaint students with the international legal framework and its relevance to Canadian law, and to provide a foundation for those interested in further study of particular areas of international law (e.g. human rights, environmental protection, trade and investments, etc.) The topics to be studied will include; the history and sources of international law, international legal persons, the relationship between international and domestic law, state jurisdiction over territory and persons, sovereign immunity, United Nations system and other international institutions, state responsibility for breaches of international law, and some discussion on the use of force.

Course Materials: International Law, 2/e Doctrine, Practice, and Theory by John H. Currie, Craig Forcese, Joanna Harrington and Valerie Oosterveld. Irwin Law Inc. January, 2014.

Teaching and Assessment: The course will be taught by a combination of lectures and class discussion. Assessment will be primarily by way of an open book final examination but may include a mid-term examination or assignment. A limited number of students also have the option of writing a minor research paper.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 5

LAW 458.3 ADVANCED HEALTH LAW
(2022-2023 Hayton)

2(2S-1R)

Calendar Description: In this seminar students will develop their knowledge of health law in relation to specific topics in the areas of health care, medico-legal ethics and medical research.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE. LAW 314.3 Health Law may be helpful but not mandatory.

Purpose and Orientation: This seminar will build on the principles introduced in the Health Law course and explore the broader context of health law. The issues examined will be selected to take into account current developments and may include legal and ethical issues in medical research, regulation of pharmaceuticals, use of human tissue, medical biotechnology, complementary and alternative medicine, and/or health care policy issues. The course will allow students to consolidate and deepen their knowledge of health law principles by applying them to complex issues, and develop their understanding of ethical and policy issues and regulatory approaches in health care and research.

Course Materials: Articles and other materials will be made available on reserve, in the University of Saskatchewan Bookstore and/or online.

Teaching and Assessment: The seminar will include a combination of instructor-led and student-led discussion. Students are expected to complete all assigned readings and participate actively in class discussions.

Assessment will be based on a major research paper and class participation, as well as one or more of the following: short commentaries on the readings or other short written assignments, a class presentation, or leadership of a seminar discussion.

Completion of the research paper will fulfill the major research paper requirement and successful completion of the seminar will fulfill the seminar requirement.

LAW 459.3 JESSUP MOOT
(2022-2023 Blocka)

1/2Nov.-Feb.

In 2021-22, many moots remained online. We are anticipating that most will go back to normal (in person), but should know more by late summer. If you are interested in the upper year moots, keep an eye out for an announcement in late August or right at the start of term. You will have a chance to apply for any moots that interest you. We typically run interviews or try-outs on the second weekend in September

Calendar Description: This seminar is for students who wish to hone in on their advocacy skills, receive guidance on producing quality written materials, and have a zest for travel.

The Jessup moot involves significant research, writing, and oral advocacy on an international law problem. This year's problem will focus on peace treaties, attacking occupied territories, economic sanctions, and the failure to properly dispose of hazardous waste materials.

Students will write Applicant and Respondent memorials (factums), and participate in multiple practice moots to prepare their oral argument. Students are expected to participate in the Canadian national rounds. If the team places highly in Canada, the team may qualify for the International Rounds in Washington, D.C.

This seminar takes place over the first and second semester. The official Jessup schedule can be found at <https://www.ilsa.org/jessup-competitors/>. Students receive three course credits to be designated towards term one or two. Students are also invited to propose topics for independent directed research, which will earn them another three-course credits to be designated towards term two.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Emphasis: This seminar is designed to prepare students for competing in the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot competition. The Jessup is the largest moot court competition in the world, drawing law students from over 120 countries. Students compete in national rounds for the chance to compete in the Jessup World Championship in Washington, D.C. The Canadian rounds of the Jessup Moot are held by a host Canadian law school each year, with the top teams advancing to compete in the International Rounds. The case argued each year is a problem between two fictional states, argued before a fictional panel of the International Court of Justice.

The problem is typically available in mid-September, with memorials (factums) due in early January. The Canadian national rounds are typically held in mid-February, with the International Rounds traditionally scheduled for the last week of March or first week of April. Mooters who are selected for the team are expected to work together on the memorials over the Christmas break.

No more than five mooters may be selected for the team: four oralists and one research counsel. Students will be selected on the basis of their academic record, mooted or public speaking interest or experience, and interest in advocacy. Interested students will be interviewed as part of the selection process and are invited to submit a letter outlining any relevant experience that they would like considered.

Course Materials: The materials covered depend on the issues raised by the Jessup problem. Students will be expected to identify the issues raised in the Jessup problem, conduct in-depth legal research on those issues, and prepare memoranda on their research.

Course Orientation: Students are expected to attend regular meetings commencing in the first semester. Students will first prepare and exchange research memos on issues raised by the Jessup problem. Next, students jointly prepare and file an Applicant and a Respondent memorial in early January. Focus of the team then switches to weekly practice moots to improve oral advocacy. In mid-February, students will travel to the host city for the Canadian national rounds and participate fully in the competition.

Means of Evaluation: Evaluation is based on the student's written and oral work, as well as their participation in meetings, practices, and overall commitment to the moot team. 33% of their grade will be based on the student's individual work in the first semester. Students will receive a group mark worth 33% of their grade based on the final draft of the memorials submitted to the competition. 33% of the grade will be based on the student's performance in the oral component of the seminar in the second semester. The seminar will not satisfy the major research paper requirement but students are invited to propose topics for independent directed research for second semester.

LAW 460.3 INTERNATIONAL TRADE LAW2(3L)

(2022-2023 Boving)

Calendar Description: This course examines principles and obligations contained in international and regional trade agreements and the use of dispute resolution to uphold and enforce such commitments. The agreements to be addressed are World Trade Organization Agreements, including the GATT 1994, the USMCA (the United States – Mexico – Canada Agreement of 2019) succeeding NAFTA (the North American Free Trade Agreement of 1994), CETA (The Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement) between Canada and the EU, and the Canadian Agreement on Internal Trade.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: The course examines the fundamental principles of international trade law as set forth in trade agreements. The course focuses primarily on the fundamental principles and obligations contained in international trade agreements including: non-discrimination obligations, non-tariff barrier regulations and disciplines on the use of domestic trade remedies (including anti-dumping and countervailing duties). It also considers the relationship between international trade law and domestic law/international law. These topics will be examined through reference to trade agreements containing such commitments, case law generated through international and regional dispute resolution systems and Canadian courts, as well as academic and/or institutional commentary on the agreements and international dispute resolution systems.

Materials: The casebook used will be Simon Lester, Bryan Mercurio & Arwel Davies, World Trade Law: Text, Materials and Commentary, 3rd ed., 2018 (Oxford and Portland: Hart Publishing). This edition is available in an electronic version on the publisher's website at <https://www.bloomsbury.com/uk/world-trade-law-9781509915972/>

Assessment: Assessment will be based on five written assignments related to legal issues, laws, and principles of international trade law, and on a 18 - 20 page (approximately 4,000 to 4,500 word) minor research essay related to international trade law. There will be NO Final Exam. In order to pass this course, students are required to submit all assignments and the minor research essay.

LAW 464.3 DAVIES CORPORATE/SECURITIES MOOT
(2022-2023 Wright)

1/2Oct.-Mar.

In 2021-22, many moots remained online. We are anticipating that most will go back to normal (in person), but should know more by late summer. If you are interested in the upper year moots, keep an eye out for an announcement in late August or right at the start of term. You will have a chance to apply for any moots that interest you. We typically run interviews or try-outs on the second weekend in September

Description: The College will once again participate in the annual Davies Canadian Corporate/Securities Law Moot. Work on the problem begins in early January 2023, with factums to be submitted by early February and oral argument in Toronto in late February/early March. Thus, the moot involves intensive work in the first part of the second semester. As with other competitive moots in which the College participates, the Corporate/Securities Moot is a 3-credit course with travel costs covered to promote equal access. Five students will be selected to participate in the moot, four of whom will act as oralists and one of whom will act as a researcher and participate fully in the drafting of factums and the critiquing oral arguments. All team members will attend the moot in Toronto. Students in both 2nd and 3rd year are eligible to apply.

Recognized as the leading event of its kind in Canada, the annual Davies' Corporate/Securities Law Moot provides an opportunity for top students from Canadian law schools to debate current legal issues in corporate and securities law with senior practitioners from Toronto law firms and corporations, regulators from the Ontario Securities Commission and judges. In addition to the formal moot competition, students have the opportunity to meet and socialize with other participants as well as many of the senior lawyers, regulators and judges who sit as justices for the competition.

LAW 465.3 LAW, DEVELOPMENT AND THE INTERNATIONAL SYSTEM
(2022-2023 Odumosu-Ayanu)

2(2S-1R)

Calendar Description: This seminar explores the interaction between law and socio-economic development (with some emphasis on international law). The seminar engages the theoretical underpinnings of the law and development discourse as well as practical aspects of the development enterprise. It explores the meaning and the historical ascendance of the development concept; its continued metamorphosis into good governance and other related concepts; and the differing approaches to effecting development and the place of law therein. While the seminar includes consideration of the roles of international organizations such as the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund in fostering development, students will also be introduced to some of the alternatives to the approaches of these international institutions that scholars, activists, grassroots movements and civil society organizations have advocated in recent times.

Students are encouraged to have taken or be taking International Law 457.3. However, International Law is not a prerequisite or co-requisite. Students with credit for LAW 865 will not receive credit for this course.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose: The law and development discourse and some international legal perspectives provide important tools for analyzing socio-economic development around the world. Socio-economic development is particularly relevant given ongoing economic changes. In the course of this seminar, students will be introduced to the law's contributions to socio-economic development around the world and Canada's approaches. The study will proceed through readings and analysis of the core literature in this area and some primary materials that are germane to the development discourse and enterprise. It is anticipated that some topics will feature brief but effective discussion via teleconferencing by authors and/or practitioners. This will allow students to interact with and benefit from discussions by scholars and practitioners that constantly engage with the development discourse and enterprise. In addition, the participatory nature of the seminar and the individual paper component should encourage students to explore and develop their own perspectives on the subject.

Course Materials: Course materials as compiled by the instructor. Required course material will be available online.

Teaching and Assessment: Evaluation is based on a major research paper worth 75% and class participation worth 25%. The participation mark comprises several elements including regular contributions to seminar discussions, presenting/leading discussion on a selected topic, and posting points or questions for discussion based on assigned readings. The paper completed in this seminar will fulfill the major writing requirement.

Calendar Description: The Youth Criminal Justice Act (YCJA) acknowledges that members of society share a responsibility to ensure that young persons are provided support to successfully transition into adulthood. The provisions of the Criminal Code, except to the extent that they are inconsistent with or excluded by the YCJA, apply to young persons. This course examines the YCJA and how it fits within Canadian criminal law, how it corresponds to international practices, how it has responded to the inherent challenges of adolescence especially for those described as marginalized, and how successfully (or unsuccessfully) it has achieved its goal of reducing crime through a multidisciplinary approach.

Purpose and Orientation: This seminar is meant to help students understand the fundamental principles of the YCJA and their relationship with the special circumstances of youth. The criminal justice system for young persons must be based on a principle of diminished moral blameworthiness; therefore, in certain circumstances youth will be treated differently than adults. Areas in which youth are treated differently due to their unique circumstance include police arrest, bail hearings and sentencing. These areas will be considered in detail, preparing students to practice in the area of youth criminal justice from both a prosecution and defense perspective.

Learning Objectives for this Course: Students should have an understanding of the unique sentencing, procedural, evidentiary and constitutional issues inherent in the relationship between the YCJA and criminal law. Students should also have an understanding of how adolescence and the special circumstance that adolescents experience affects youth criminal justice.

Course Materials:

Recommended:

- 1) Brock Jones, Emma Rhodes, Mary Birdsell, Prosecuting and Defending Youth Criminal Justice Cases, 2nd Edition (Toronto: Emond Publishing, 2019)
- 2) An annotated Criminal Code

Textbooks can be purchased at Turning the Tide Bookstore

Student Evaluation: Evaluation based on:

Option 1: Major Research Paper (see academic regulations for the College of Law for Major Research Paper definition)

- Major Research Paper (70%)
- Class Presentation (20%)
- Class Participation (10%)

Option 2: Minor Research Paper (see academic regulations for the College of Law for Minor Research Paper definition)

- Minor Research Paper (70%)

- Class Presentation (20%)
- Class Participation (10%)

Paper(s) must be on a topic relating to the substantive content of the course, to be approved by the course instructor in advance.

Class participation: Attendance, engaged discussion based on assigned readings and thoughtful consideration of the issues and the insights of other students.

Class presentation: A presentation on the student's paper topic.

LAW 467.3 LABOUR AND EMPLOYMENT LAW1(3L)

(2022-2023 – TERM 1 (s.1) Stack)

Calendar Description: A study of the legal concepts, institutions and procedures concerning the workplace in Canada, including the contract of employment at common law; the growth of precarious work; legal protection of the right to organize; status under collective bargaining legislation; the concept of the exclusive bargaining agent; the role of labour relations tribunals; the legal principles relating to industrial disputes; human rights legislation pertaining to the workplace; and statutory regimes concerning labour standards.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: The purpose of this course is to introduce students to the strands of doctrine which underlie labour and employment law so as to enable them to understand the theoretical basis of the common law contract of employment, human rights legislation, the statutory schemes governing collective bargaining relationships, and, to a lesser extent, the regulatory system associated with the establishment of minimum labour standards. Consideration will be given to the premises underlying various legal regimes which regulate the employment relationship, and a contrast will be drawn between the common law principles related to employment contracts, and the elements of the system created by collective bargaining legislation.

Course Materials: Students will be asked to purchase the Labour Law Casebook Group, Labour and Employment Law: Cases, Materials and Commentary, 9th edition (Toronto: Irwin Law, 2018). Supplementary cases and materials will be posted on PAWS.

Teaching and Assessment: A combination of lectures and classroom discussion will be the basis of instruction. Students will be assessed on the basis of a final examination. Options for major or minor research papers may also be offered at the instructor's discretion.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 0

Calendar Description: Examination of rights to child support, custody and access, determinations of paternity, child protection and adoption and the enforcement of support and custody orders.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: LAW 372.3

Purpose and Orientation: This course builds on the foundations provided in Family Law I but focuses on legal issues particularly relevant to the child-parent relationship.

We begin with a survey of the social policy framework in relation to the care of children in Canada and an overview of the regulation of the parent-child relationship including the legal regimes governing determinations of parentage, parenting and support orders, child protection and adoption. We then canvas issues that specifically pertain to parentage including the use of reproductive technologies and paternity testing. Broader definitions of the parent-child relationship and factors relevant to the allocation of decision-making responsibility, parenting time or contact and child support obligations are examined under the Divorce Act and relevant provincial Acts and regulations. The impact of domestic violence on child well-being and parenting disputes will be given special attention. We will also briefly address enforcement procedures for support and parenting orders.

If time permits, cases related to the removal of children from their parents by state officials will be reviewed, as well as cases related to the adoption of children.

The course materials will be taught primarily by way of lecture and small group discussion using a problem-based method. Multi-disciplinary perspectives on the issues of parenthood and child care and development will be explored. Students will be expected to participate in class discussions and to engage in a critical commentary on or evaluation of the reading materials and legal outcomes. Adequate preparation and familiarity with the casebook materials will be assumed.

Course Materials: Cases and statutory materials will be placed on Canvas.

Assessment: Possibilities for assessment include minor or major research papers and an exam.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 5

Calendar Description: A commercial reorganization is a court sanctioned scheme under which a financially distressed business is restructured so as to permit it to continue in business by compromising claims of its creditors and others. There has been a fundamental shift in Canadian insolvency over the past 30 years, in that there has recently emerged effective systems that actively facilitate the restructuring and rescue of insolvent businesses as an alternative to their liquidation. This course will make use of several highly realistic simulations in order to develop both an understanding of the substantive law that governs commercial reorganizations as well as the advocacy and negotiation skills that are necessary to provide effective legal advice and representation to your clients.

Prerequisite: NONE. It is strongly recommended that students would benefit from taking Law 407.3, Bankruptcy, Insolvency and Receiverships and/or Law 420.3, Current Issues in Insolvency, prior to or at the same time as this course.

Purpose and Orientation: Students will gain an understanding of the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, systems that actively facilitate restructuring and rescue of insolvent businesses as an alternative to their liquidation. Students will demonstrate their ability to appropriately conduct a court application related to corporate restructuring, including preparation and presentation of an oral argument, preparation of a notice of motion with relevant affidavits, a bench brief, development of a negotiation strategy and a final negotiation analysis.

Learning Objectives for this course:

- Develop an advanced understanding of the substantive law respecting corporate restructuring law.
- Develop skills in the preparation of court documents (notice of application, affidavits, brief of law).
- Develop research skills in the preparation of a discussion topic and in the preparation of legal brief.
- Develop negotiation skills and strategies in the context of a corporate restructuring.

Required Text:

- The required casebook will be available for purchase.

Student Evaluation:

- Class Participation: 15%
- Court Application (oral submission) 25%
- Court Application (written submissions): 30%
- Negotiation Strategy Outline: 15%
- Final Negotiation Analysis: 15%

LAW 474.3 CHILDREN AND THE LAW
(2022-2023 Wieggers)

1(2S-1R)

Calendar Description: This seminar will explore the legal status and treatment of children from a historical, cross-cultural and multi-disciplinary perspective.

Prerequisite(s): NONE

Purpose and Emphasis: The purpose of this seminar is to encourage discussion, research and reflection on topics related to the experience and treatment of children under the law.

The seminar will begin with an historical account of changes in the meaning and social significance of childhood over time and across cultures. We will then examine the status of children under Canadian, British and Indigenous law and consider the significance of the international movement in favour of children's rights which culminated in the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child. In the first half of the seminar, legal and policy issues in some or all of the following areas will be explored: child poverty, the corporal punishment of children under the Criminal Code and the Charter, outcomes for children in parenting disputes in the family law system and in the child welfare system, and youth justice. Guest speakers will be invited to participate in the discussion of some of these issues.

In the second half of the seminar, students will be required to present their papers on specific legal issues relevant to children.

Course Materials: Selected readings of a multi-disciplinary nature will be assigned.

Teaching and Assessment: The paper will comprise 75% of the final grade; class participation, including presentation of the student's paper, will make up the remaining 25%.

LAW 477.3 TAXATION I
(2022-2023 Larre)

1(3L)

Calendar Description: This course deals with federal income taxation of individuals and focuses on basic tax principles, underlying theoretical concepts, and policy rationales. Topics normally covered in the course include procedure, statutory interpretation, the tax base, measurement of income, deductions, exemptions, and capital gains. The course is intended to be useful to students who will practice in the many areas of law to which income tax law may be relevant.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: The course is designed to introduce students to income tax law under the Federal Income Tax Act. The underlying policy considerations and societal impacts are considered in order to gain appreciation of the Income Tax Act as an important document of social policy. Students will be asked to reflect upon their own values and experiences to deepen their learning.

The course focuses upon the taxation of the individual, but it deals with many of the concepts that are necessary to understand taxation of other units such as corporations, trusts and partnerships. Thus, the course acts as a building block for the senior tax courses and further learning within the legal profession. It is also designed to enable the generalist to identify taxation issues in many other areas of the law. Finally, since the course is highly statutorily based, it facilitates the skill of statutory interpretation.

Course Materials: Students will be assigned a textbook, which will be available for purchase through the Bookstore or from past students. Further materials will be available online, or on the course Canvas website.

Teaching and Assessment: This course will be delivered primarily through in-person lectures, though recorded materials may occasionally be used. Students will be expected to attend lectures and to have done assigned readings or problems prior to the class. Classes will often involve active learning activities to facilitate learning and engagement. Exam-style problems will be assigned and taken up in class approximately 3-5 times during the course. Attendance and preparation for these sessions will be mandatory, and preparation in groups will often be encouraged. Assessment is primarily by way of a final examination, with some minor required and optional assignments. Students with questions about the format may contact Professor Larre via email.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 5

LAW 478.3 TAXATION II
(2022-2023 Purse)

2(3L)

Calendar Description: This course focuses on taxation of business entities including corporations, trusts, and partnerships. Since this course builds on concepts introduced in Taxation I LAW 477.3, knowledge of the basic concepts covered in that course is essential.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: Taxation I LAW 477.3

Purpose and Orientation: This course is intended to provide students with a basic understanding of the tax treatment of corporations, trusts, and partnerships and to expose students to some of the provisions of the Income Tax Act that commonly apply in business transactions. Topics normally covered in this course include a comparison of the tax treatment of business entities, the payment of funds out of a business entity to an individual, the tax-free transfer of property into a business entity, and corporate reorganizations. In many cases, the policy or theory underlying a particular rule will be examined in order that students may gain a better understanding of the provision. Due to the technical nature of the Income Tax Act, statutory interpretation will be an important component of this course. The primary aim of the course is to give students an overview of the taxation of corporations, trusts, and partnerships in order to provide students with a foundation for further study or practice upon graduation. This course should be of particular interest to students who plan to practise taxation law or corporate/commercial law after graduation or students who are interested in studying the use of income tax legislation as a tool for the development of social and economic policy.

Course Materials: Recommended and required books and supplemental material for this course will be available for purchase through the Bookstore, available online, or placed on the course website.

Teaching and Assessment: Class time will be used for lectures interspersed with questions, problem solving, and other active learning exercises. Assessment will be a 100% final exam.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 0

LAW 482.3	CRIMINAL INTENSIVE SEMINAR	2(2S-1R)
LAW 484.12	CRIMINAL INTENSIVE PRACTICUM	2(12CL)
(2022-2023 Pfefferle/Watson)

(This is an application-based class)

NOTE: Entry into the intensive criminal law program is by selection by the course instructors. Students who wish to be considered are asked to send an email to Brian Pfefferle, at brian@pfefferlelaw.com outlining the reasons for their interest in the course and describing any relevant experience. Students should also attach their cv or resume. The deadline for submission of the email application is yet to be determined. Applicants will be informed by a date yet to be determined of their acceptance in the program.

Prerequisites/Co-requisites: Both Criminal Procedure and Evidence I are prerequisites (to be completed by December 2022)

This is a 15-credit one-semester (13 week) clinical course including practicum and academic seminar.

Calendar description: The Criminal Practicum and Seminar is designed to provide real world practical exposure to the practice of criminal law. The students will be placed in the office of a criminal lawyer for nine weeks at 32 hours per week (Monday to Thursday) where the students will become intimately involved in the practice of criminal law. The practicum placements will be supplemented with a series of lectures during the first two weeks of term and then with a weekly seminar (Fridays) with the course instructors and students will be required to complete one major research paper, one minor research paper and weekly reflective journals. The instructors also hope that the students will also be placed for one four day week with a Judge of a criminal court. The practicum encourages reflection by the student about the practice of criminal law and will provide an opportunity for advanced research in the form of two papers.

Learning Objectives: Students will be exposed to a wide variety of criminal practice issues from the defence of criminal accused to the running of a criminal law practice. The students will be encouraged to reflect upon what they observe and will also learn about several advanced criminal law, ethical, evidence, trial advocacy and criminal procedure issues. The Charter of Rights and Freedoms legal rights and procedural issues will also be discussed in depth. The course will be designed so as to represent a culmination of all that a criminal lawyer needs to know and will build on the student's substantive knowledge in the discipline. While entitled the "intensive criminal practicum" the courses will result in students being exposed to many areas of the law which in practice will tend to blur together. This will involve those subjects above listed and a myriad of other issues including insurance law, property law and other areas which will arise as a result of the various criminal matters to which the student is exposed during their placements with the supervising lawyers and Judges. Nonetheless the placements will be with Criminal lawyers and students should be continually involved in that area of the law rather than be exposed to all areas of the law as generally envisaged in an articling process.

The Externship (Lawyer) Placements

Students will be placed from about January 9 to March 10, inclusive, with hand selected lawyers in the community. They are expected to be in the placement Monday to Thursday work hours, which are assumed to be 8:00 or 9:00 AM to 4:00 or 5:00 PM. The students are then to be at the Friday seminar with the instructors. The instructors will hand select the supervising lawyers and law firms and will be in regular contact with them. It is expected that the lawyers will engage with the students on several fronts. This is not an early “articles” process but rather is intended to encourage reflection on what criminal practice involves and how it should best be done. There are almost no “criminal articles” in the private criminal bar in Saskatoon and these placements are not intended to compete in any way with the articling process. Students require an assigned supervisor with whom they can report to with work related questions and concerns. The instructors will develop feedback forms for completion by the supervising lawyers and by the students at various stages throughout the placements and after they are completed, to continually gauge the success and worth of the experiential learning opportunities to which the students are exposed.

The instructor will have regular contact with both the supervisor and the student. The students are not lawyers or junior counsel and are not expected to be providing legal advice in any way to the placement or to clients of the placement. The student is required to attend, be professionally dressed, and to understand the work environment within which they will be expected to act professionally.

Student Evaluation: The program will be open to 5 students per year. The seminar will constitute three credits of course work. Students will be required to complete the Intensive Criminal Seminar which will involve one major research paper (50% of three credits) and one minor research paper (25% of three credits) and weekly journals and seminar participation (25% of three credits) and all will be marked by the instructors. The practicum will be worth 12 credits of course work. Together then, the complete program will be the equivalent of 15 credits or one semester’s worth of work.

LAW 486.3 LAW AND PSYCHIATRY1(2S-1R)

(2022-2023 T. Dahl, Dr. M. Mela and H. Harradence)

Calendar Description: Introduction to psychiatric theory; the methodology of psychiatric diagnosis and modern psychiatric treatment; the role of psychiatrists in the legal process. Psychiatry and the criminal process: remand for mental examination, fitness to stand trial, sentencing, automatism, insanity and dangerous offenders. The concept of competency: contractual and testamentary capacity. Civil commitment of the mentally ill: a comparative study. The psychiatrist as expert witness and issues in malingering.

Prerequisite(s): LAW 351 (Evidence I). Students will find it helpful to have taken Health Law 314.3.

Purpose and Orientation: This seminar is designed to provide students with a strong introduction to the area of Psychiatry and the Law. As the calendar description shows, Psychiatry plays an important role in many areas of law. This is most obvious in criminal law and evidence. On the other hand, the area of Contract and Wills are also affected in important ways by issues surrounding capacity. The seminar will be supported by the Department of Psychiatry and it is expected that Professor Mansfield Mela will be involved together with a group of Psychiatric resident doctors. If we are allowed to have in person classes, the seminars will likely be held off site at the medical school and elsewhere which may result in a late return to the College. Therefore, flexibility will be required in the student's schedule. Students will be expected to produce a major research paper, be active participants in the seminar and to produce a course journal.

Required Course Materials: TBD

Additional readings will appear on PAWS.

Calendar Description: This course publishes the Saskatchewan Law Review. The work involves selecting and editing material submitted for publication, participating in policy decisions, proofreading, and other miscellaneous tasks. Each student also undertakes written work for possible publication in the Review.

Note: A one-year commitment to the Review is required. Academic credit is, however, awarded only for one term. Students will designate the term for which academic credit is awarded.

Purpose and Emphasis: Students in the seminar are members of the Editorial Board of the Saskatchewan Law Review. The work load includes editorial duties and a writing requirement. Currently each student must write a short book note reviewing a recently published book for publication in the Review, or write three abstracts of previously published articles for publication on the Law Review web site. Students also complete a minor research paper under the supervision of a faculty member who has expertise in the topic selected. The minor research paper is a short research paper on any topic of interest to the student. One option is for the paper to take the form of a critique of a recent case, or a note on recent legislation, with a view to publication in the Review as a case comment or legislative note. This paper satisfies the College's minor research paper writing requirement.

The Law Review class is not a vehicle for the writing of a major research paper, which will normally be completed as part of the requirement for another seminar. The work in the Law Review class is, however, intended to assist students in developing their skills with respect to the style and form of major research papers and law journal articles, and to enhance their skills in the writing of legal memoranda and opinions. Although major research papers are not written as a component of the Law Review class, students are encouraged to write their papers in other classes with a view to publication in the Review.

It is normally possible to offer summer employment, at normal full-time research student remuneration, to three members of the Editorial Board to work as summer editors for the Law Review. These students automatically qualify for the class in the subsequent year, and will be the Managing Editors of the Review for that year.

Credit Hours: The course carries three credit hours, allocated to one or other of the semesters. Students must, however, make a one-year commitment to the Review to allow sufficient time to develop editorial expertise and complete group assignments. The overall work load over the year is consistent with the awarding of a half-class credit, and editorial work, assessment and writing requirements have been adjusted to ensure that the work load is appropriate. Students will designate the term for which they will receive academic credit but, whichever term they designate, their grade for the course is awarded at the end of the academic year.

Assessment: Assessment is prima facie as follows: Work as a member of the Editorial Board (60%); Book Note or Abstracts (10%); Minor Research Paper (30%). At the discretion of the Faculty Editor, and with the agreement of the student, assessment may be varied from the above to accommodate particular needs of the Review or the special interest of a student.

Enrolment: Enrolment is restricted to 18 students, selected by the Faculty Editor. All students are Members of the Editorial Board, three of them being the Managing Editors. The course may be taken in either the second or third year, or both. Each year, students with exceptionally strong academic records receive letters from the Dean inviting them to apply. However, other interested students are also welcome to apply. All students who wish to be considered for selection for Law Review, whether invited to apply or not, can e-mail a letter of application along with their resume and writing sample to Michelle Halvorson, Administrative Coordinator, (m.halvorson@usask.ca) by Friday, August 12th, 2022. The letter of application may include the student's qualifications and commitment, and, where relevant, describing any special experience or expertise in writing or publishing which the student might bring to the Review. Students will be notified in late August whether or not they have been selected. After they have been notified that they have been selected for the class, and have dropped a class in the term they wish to receive credit, students will contact louise.ferguson@usask.ca to be registered in Law Review.

Law Review is recognized along with other academic honours in the commencement program when the student graduates.

INTENSIVE 15 CREDIT CLINICAL LAW PROGRAM AT CLASSIC

LAW 491.3 CLINICAL LAW SEMINAR (3 cu) 1&2(2S-1R)

OR

LAW 497.3 LEGAL ETHICS CLINICAL SEMINAR (3cu) 1&2(2S-1R)

AND

LAW 492.12 CLINICAL LAW PRACTICUM (12 cu) 1&2(12C)

(THIS PROGRAM WILL BE OFFERED IN BOTH FALL 2022 & WINTER 2023 TERMS – Buhler)

This is an application-based 15 credit full term program. See note below for important information.

NOTE: The 15-credit Intensive Clinical Law program, offered in partnership with Community Legal Assistance Services for Saskatoon Inner City (CLASSIC), will be offered in both the fall and winter terms.

Entry into the intensive clinical law program is by selection by the course instructor and CLASSIC. Interested students should send an email to Professor Sarah Buhler, at sarah.buhler@usask.ca by June 28, 2022 to express their interest. Emails to Professor Buhler should include the student's cv, unofficial transcript, and a brief explanation about why they are interested in participating in the program, and identifying whether they have a preference for the fall or winter term. There will be an interview process to select students, and students will be informed of their acceptance into the program as soon as possible. Students should enroll for regular law school classes and be prepared to drop these classes if they are accepted into the program.

PLEASE NOTE: Students can fulfill their Legal Ethics and Professionalism requirement by enrolling in the Legal Ethics Clinical Seminar along with the Intensive Clinical Law Practicum. Students who have already fulfilled their Legal Ethics and Professionalism requirement can enroll in the Intensive Clinical Law Seminar alongside the Intensive Clinical Practicum. Students can also fulfill their seminar and major research paper requirements through the program.

Calendar Description: This is a 15-credit one-semester (13 week) intensive clinical law program including practicum and academic seminar. Students enrolled in Intensive Clinical Law will be placed at Community Legal Assistance Services for Saskatoon Inner City (CLASSIC) where they will take on the role of legal advocates under the supervision of the clinic's supervising lawyers. CLASSIC and the Clinical law program have received national and international recognition for excellence. Students will assume carriage of client files in a wide variety of substantive law areas. They will be engaged in all aspects of legal practice, including client interviewing and counselling, file management, legal research, the preparation of legal documents, letters and memoranda, and representing clients in administrative law hearings and provincial court trials. Students may also take on one or more "systemic initiative" projects that may include public legal education sessions in the community, community-based projects or law reform campaigns.

Through their clinic work, students will engage critically with legal problems in the complicated social contexts in which they arise, build relationships with clients and learn about the communities of their clients, develop professional identities, work through ethical issues, and develop lawyering skills. Through structured and critical reflection during the seminar, students will analyze and synthesize the various components of their experiences and reflect on larger issues relating to professional responsibility, the legal system, and the limits and possibilities of legal practice in situations of social injustice.

The practicum will be graded on a pass-fail basis and the seminar will be graded on a percentage grade basis. The practicum and seminar will provide extensive exposure to criminal, civil and administrative law procedure, evidence law, trial advocacy, negotiation, legal research and writing, and professional responsibility. Specific areas of practice that students will be exposed to include: criminal law, human rights law, immigration and refugee law, housing law, social assistance law, employment law, prison law, wills and estates, and more.

Purpose and Emphasis: The course is based on a model of experiential education, where students learn through experience, hands-on mentorship, and critical reflection on experience. The course is centred on students' clinical experience at CLASSIC, where they will assume carriage of client files in a broad variety of legal areas. Students are supervised on every step of their legal work at CLASSIC. In addition to substantive legal work, students may also have the opportunity to be involved in law reform initiatives, community based projects and public legal education. Students will gain the tools to reflect critically upon their practice and their identities as future lawyers, and gain insights into the legal system from "the ground up". Students will be expected to be at CLASSIC from Monday to Thursday each week, and will attend a clinical law seminar on Friday mornings.

Course materials: Seminar materials consist of a set of articles which will be made available electronically, and possibly a textbook.

Teaching and Assessment: The 12 credit unit clinical practicum will be assessed on a pass-fail basis. The seminar will be graded on a percentage grade basis. Students can choose to write a major research paper or a minor research paper and another assignment; and there is a participation component. A detailed letter of evaluation and explanation can be provided to the student by the course instructor to be used for the purposes of job applications, etc.

15-credit course: Students will receive 15 credits for this course (12 clinical credits plus 3 seminar credits).

Selection of students: The course is open to second and third year students, but preference will be given to third year students, and to students who have demonstrated an interest in or commitment to community service and/ or pro bono work. As noted above, the selection process involves students emailing Prof. Buhler at sarah.buhler@usask.ca expressing their interest by June 28, 2022. Students will be selected following an interview process and will be informed in July of their acceptance into the program.

Prerequisites: Completion of first year law

LAW 495.3 INDIVIDUAL DIRECTED RESEARCH1&2(3S)

(2022-2023 Various Instructors)

Calendar Description: This seminar allows interested students to undertake a substantial research project. Enrolment is limited to two students for each of the professors willing to take on student(s). The course is not timetabled as convenient meeting time can be arranged to suit the instructors and students concerned. Students must approach individual professors with a research proposal. All proposals must be approved by the Studies Committee.

Students must apply for the course by completing the form available HERE (the form is to be completed by both the student and their chosen supervisor), and returning it to louise.ferguson@usask.ca. Completed forms are then sent to the Chair of the Studies Committee for review.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Proposed topics must be outside the scope of seminar courses offered in the College.

LAW 498.3 (s.82) ADVANCED LEGAL RESEARCH
(2022-2023 Ayotunde)

2(3L)

Calendar Description: Legal research is fundamental to providing legal analysis and advice. This course focuses on advanced application of practical legal research and writing skills, including locating and updating relevant case law, legislation and commentaries, for the purpose of providing professional support to client decision-making. Building on skills students acquired in their introductory research and writing instruction, this course focuses on application of legal research and analysis to solve problems and support client decision-making. Students will formulate and use research plans, find and select relevant primary law sources using a variety of strategies, use secondary sources efficiently, interpret and work with legislation, and identify and analyze options using professional decision-making processes and strategies. This course will be a hands-on and experiential learning class.

Prerequisites/Co-requisites: LAW 243.0 Legal Research and Writing

Detailed Description: This course focuses on applying research strategies to solve problems and provide advice to a client or other decision-maker. Developing legal research, communication and client advising skills is a progressive process. The course is designed to extend rather than duplicate the research and writing skills introduced in the first year course.

Through practical simulations, students will develop advanced skills in locate, evaluate, select and analyze research results to solve legal problems. Students will be introduced to efficient legal source finding tools, including quantum finding tools, annotated statutes, subject-specific research guides, and secondary sources. The course will also provide students with advanced legislative interpretation tools, and techniques for researching Aboriginal law sources, Indigenous legal sources, legal sources from non-Canadian jurisdictions, and International Law legal sources.

Using scenarios based on practical legal problems and questions commonly encountered in articling, clerking and legal practice, students will locate sources, analyze research results and improve their ability to communicate those results. Students will have the opportunity to reflect on the lawyer's role as adviser, and how to communicate effectively to different audiences.

Good writing can be better. The course will provide students with tools to recognize, correct and avoid writing problems. The writing and editing principles in this course fit into a continuum of improving communication and writing skills throughout one's legal career.

The overall aim of this course is to provide students with practical skills to enhance their ability to find and analyze appropriate legal sources and communicate research results in a client-focused manner.

Course Materials: All course materials are available in electronic format, and will be posted on the course website or available through the library. Students must be able to access all legal research databases available through the University of Saskatchewan Law Library.

Teaching and Assessment: The instructor will use various pedagogical techniques. Most weeks, students would be expected to view 40-60 minutes of video lecture or research demonstration videos in advance of class. Some weeks will have readings instead of video instruction. During scheduled class time, students are expected to practice legal research techniques and engage in discussion of results. Student attendance and engagement during class is required. Exercises and assignments will be debriefed through small-group peer-review, class discussion and instructor feedback. Student performance is assessed through in-class exercises, and after class quizzes, assignments and reflective essays. There is no final exam.

Minor Research Papers Allowed: 0

Calendar Description: This course examines anti-racism by centering race in the landscape of how we analyze and understand the law. The course draws on a wide variety of anti-racist scholarship including critical race theory to demonstrate how Canadian law has contributed to and countered white structural advantages. Beginning with an historical analysis, students will investigate contemporary Canadian racial injustices, courts cases, and rulings, while exploring their responsibilities as legal professionals.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: The rationale for this course is to engage students in learning about racism, intersectional oppression, and anti-racist practice within the legal landscape. Specifically, the course aims to raise the race consciousness of law students such that they acquire anti-oppressive knowledge, skills, and tools that can enable abilities to navigate the practice of law and reimagine the space of racial justice. Student comprehension is assessed through a combination of class participation, a research paper and a class assignment.

Learning Objectives:

- Students will understand how the social construction of race and scientific racism legitimized and authorized specific examples of legalized racism within Canadian historical contexts;
- Students will be able to apply anti-racist analyses to various legal topics presented through class-based discussions and assigned resources;
- Students will examine anti-racist literature as it applies to legal scholarship and identify common themes that can enhance their practice; and
- Students will consider their social positioning as racialized individuals in relation to the legal profession.

Course Materials: Readings and resources as assigned.

Teaching and Assessment: Students will be evaluated on the basis of:

- 35% participation (details on how this will be assessed will be provided at the start of the class)
- 15% Class Assignment
- 50% Minor Research Paper

LAW 498.3 (s.89) COLONIALISM
(2022-2023 MacDonald)

1(2S-1R)

Description: This seminar will consider the legal treatment of the Indigenous peoples of Canada in the broader historical and geographic context of European imperial rule. We will focus on the colonial context of the methods Canada has used to dispossess, administer and assimilate Indigenous peoples beginning with their origins at a time of aggressive imperial conquest, through to the period when empires gave way to development and decolonization. Students will examine the differences between legal and historical reasoning. We will see how historical investigation can be used to strengthen legal argument, and how legal reasoning can illuminate historical analysis. Previous background in history is desirable but not required.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Learning Objectives: The objectives of this course are to:

- enhance student understanding of the impact of Canada's colonial past on the legal treatment of Indigenous peoples;
- encourage students to think critically about the potential, and the limitations, of historical analysis in legal argument;
- improve students' legal reasoning skills by making explicit the differences between law's use of the past and historical reasoning;
- offer students an opportunity to improve research, oral and written communication skills through attention to alternative models and sources.

Course Materials: A mix of secondary and primary sources will be made available electronically through library and internet sources. Wherever possible, published sources will be available on reserve.

Teaching and Assessment: Seminar course. Students are expected to participate with each other and the instructor in discussion of the assigned readings (participation is worth 20%). Students will write a major research paper due at the end of term (worth 80%). Students must submit tentative paper title and abstract for instructor approval in week 7. They will also have the option of providing, for instructor feedback, a complete prospectus for the paper demonstrating engagement with the existing literature and a preliminary identification of secondary and primary sources. The mark for this optional prospectus will count for 20% of the grade of the paper (or 16% overall).

LAW 498.3 (s.90) ADVANCED FAMILY LAW
(2022-2023 Walen)

2(2S-1R)

Calendar Description: This seminar course will allow those students who have taken one or more classes in Family Law to expand upon and research many current trends and themes relating to law and the family. Critical evaluation of the many issues in family law will be directed by the instructor and supplemented with guest lecturers from other professional disciplines. Students will be required to write a major research paper with an expectation that they will present their research and paper to the class.

Prerequisite: Family Law I 372.3

Course Materials: There will be no text requirement. Students may be assigned readings authored by prominent academics/professionals in somewhat discrete areas.

Teaching and Assessment:

- i) Major research paper (70%)
- ii) Performance in one presentation (20%)
- iii) Class participation and engagement (10%)

LAW 498.3 (s.92) INDIGENOUS NATION BUILDING2(2S-1R)

(2022-2023 Lavallee)

Calendar description:

This course explores critical nation-building issues of Indigenous peoples in North America. It will primarily focus on the Harvard Project on American Indian Economic Development (HPAIED) theory. Discussion will be on the issues surrounding the assertion of self-determination by Indigenous Nations. Students will examine current Indigenous institutions of self-government; and assess policies of Indigenous and non-Indigenous governments, and capacity building methods for effective governance.

Prerequisite or Co-requisite: NONE (although Canadian Aboriginal LAW 436 or Aboriginal Law & Policy in Canada LAW 453 are recommended)

Purpose and Orientation:

Indigenous Nations have been subjected to colonialistic policies and laws for over 100 years. Notably, the Indian Act has had far-reaching (mostly negative) effects on Indigenous Nations, including removal of traditional Indigenous governance structures. The suppression of Indigenous institutions of governance is not merely historical, but ongoing. Many Indigenous Nations are exploring ways to assert their jurisdiction and create or revitalize governance systems for themselves, which advance their own goals to assert and implement self-determination. This course will explore various ways in which Indigenous Nations are revitalizing and (re)building their Nations.

Learning Objectives:

- Link concepts of politics, economics, and culture, with nation-building and leadership through readings, discussions, and case studies;
- Ability to examine current issues and assessing how to enhance effective governance and its foundational capacities;
- create familiarity with the theory of Nation Building in order to recognize where and how it may be applied.

Materials:

Jorgensen, Miriam, ed. 2007. Rebuilding Native Nations: Strategies for Governance and Development. Tucson: University of Arizona Press.

Other materials will be available through Canvas.

Assessment:

- Participation: 25%
- Minor research paper: 75%

LAW 498.3 (s.96) HOUSING, HOMELESSNESS, AND THE LAW
(2022-2023 Buhler)

2(2S-1R)

Calendar Description: This seminar examines issues relating to housing, homelessness, and law. It will introduce students to the context and policy debates around housing and homelessness in Canada, and examine issues relating to housing and homelessness through multiple lenses. Topics covered will include Indigenous laws and perspectives relating to housing, the international human right to housing, federal and provincial housing legislation, and advocacy and litigation regarding homelessness and the right to housing. The seminar also covers key features of the law and practice relating to residential tenancies, with a special focus on eviction and access to justice in administrative housing law tribunals. Finally, it explores policy and law reform ideas for the future of housing law and justice in Canada.

Prerequisite/Co-requisite: NONE

Purpose and Orientation: Housing is a fundamental human need, but affordable, secure housing remains elusive for many, and homelessness persists in Canada. International, federal, provincial, and municipal laws and policies shape housing realities and experiences, and housing also engages multiple substantive areas of law including contract, property, criminal, administrative, human rights, and family law. This course provides students with an in-depth overview of how law intersects with housing, and provides students opportunities to develop critical perspectives about law and legal practice in this area.

Course Materials: Readings will be made available electronically and through the law library.

Teaching and Assessment: Evaluation is based on:

- OPTION 1: A minor research paper (40%) and creative project or book review (35%)
OR
- OPTION 2: A major research paper (75%)
AND
- Attendance and participation (25%)
